KABBA, Nigeria (UPI) — The king of Ayere has called on all Nigeria's juju doctors to put a hex on the proposed French atomic bomb tests in the Sahara Desert.

Oba (king) Olumodeji did not say how it could be done. But he appealed to native doctors throughout the country to "find a means to halt" the tests.

Chronic Care Hospitals

'Gorge' Among First In New B.C. Plan

By ALEC MERRIMAN

Victoria's Gorge Hospital will probably be among the first to participate in the new chronic care hospital scheme which the government proposes to bring in at the current session of the legislature.

It is expected the plan will start April 1 and that hospitals will take part in the plan as they provide approved chronic care facilities.

Since Health Minister Martin first announced basic details of the program, Gorge Road Hospital has extended its facilities for chronic care.

Most of the gaps in the present hospital insurance program will be filled at this session.

Two steps will be taken:

1. Patients suffering chronic illnesses or diseases will come under the $1 a day BCHIS plan — if doctors certify they are likely to improve.

Sea Union Still Barred

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress announced Friday it has rejected the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.) bid for reinstatement.

2. The government will pay half the cost of building non-profit, publicly-operated nursing homes for incurables, but inmates will not be covered by BCHIS and will have to pay their own bills.

First move to get under the chronic hospital care plan will have to come from the communities that want to get in on it.

Relief Ship Blocked

Antarctic Scientists Stranded Extra Year

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Twenty-four scientists, including an unidentified North American, will be stranded for a full year at the Argentine-operated Lincoln Ellsworth base in Antarctica because a relief ship has been unable to reach them, it was learned last night.

Scientists manning Argentina's Belgrano base also will be cut off for a year, but their condition is expected to be much more comfortable since the station is considerably larger and better equipped than Ellsworth.

In both cases, food and other supplies are sufficient to last the exploration teams until the spring thaws of 1961.

An Argentine icebreaker has given up on its relief mission because of unusually heavy ice.

It was 170 miles from Ellsworth when it had to turn back. No other attempts to reach the station are possible this year.

Ellsworth was built by the U.S. in 1957 for the International Geophysical Year and was later turned over to Argentina.

Winds, Tides High

High winds last night sliced power and telephone lines in the torrent-drenched area between the Malahat and Nanaimo, adding to the woes of hundreds of residents battling floods and watching for landslides.

There was no consolation from the weather office, which forecast more winds and rain for today.

Damage from flooding was estimated in the "thousands of dollars" in Cowichan and Nanaimo.

Tons of Rock

Hillside and lowland areas in the Cowichan district were hit hardest yesterday as heavy rains loosened tons of rock and mud in slides and rampaging Koksilah and Cowichan Rivers rose six feet, forcing at least half a dozen homes to be abandoned.

Sections of Nanaimo were flooded as the Chase River overflowed its banks.

A record three inches of rain fell on Duncan overnight Thursday and as much was expected again last night. Near-record rainfalls were reported in Nanaimo and Parksville.

A number of slides cut off roads, and other routes were reported under water varying from a few inches to five feet on one section of the Cowichan Bay Road.

Close Watch

Half a dozen bridges in the Cowichan district were being watched closely as water roared by only inches beneath the decks of the spans.

A disastrous combination of the heavy rains and an unusually high tide shoved by a strong east wind, swamped the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway track at Koksilah with 17 inches of water, peaking at 5:45 p.m., forcing a freight train to stop and disrupting the passenger service.

A southbound one-car passenger train was held at Duncan and passengers transferred to a Vancouver Island Coach Lines bus early last night to continue to Victoria.

Deep Water

Earlier in the day, a Coach Lines dispatcher said one of the bus drivers found the water so deep on Cowichan Bay Road that he emptied the luggage well and put suitcases and parcels in the passenger compartment to keep them dry.

Winds estimated at more than 45 miles an hour blew up at 5 p.m. to add to the havoc. Gusts knocked over a dozen trees, which sliced power and telephone lines, cutting off communications and throwing the valley into darkness.

Lights Out

Lights went out for almost two hours before B.C. Hydro crews, working on high-tension lines despite the high winds, restored power.

Rain-Fed Flood Cascades Over Highway

Torrential rains run off in a cascade of water over Cowichan Bay Road at the worst of 20 sections of the road that are under water. This car splashed through, but dozens of others stalled in mid-Island flooded areas yesterday. —(Colonist photo by Charles Thompson.)

In Morning

Victoria Faces Still More Rain

A warning that more rain is in store for lower Vancouver Island today was issued by weatherman William Mackie last night in the wake of reports of flooded basements and roads.

"There is definite indication that another period of rain equal to the one we just went through is in store today," he said, "although they don't usually occur two days in a row."

Rain should start early this morning and be over by the afternoon, he said.

Damage from yesterday's rain was comparatively light in Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt. Only a few reports of minor flooding in basements were received.

River Rises Seven Feet At Montreal

MONTREAL (UPI) — The St. Lawrence River rose seven feet in less than an hour early yesterday and flooded an eight-block area of the Montreal waterfront.

Harbor officials said there was a danger of further flooding by water backed up by huge ice jams.

Tough revolt leader Pierre Lagallarde heads for a meeting with his followers.

51 Survive Emergency Landing

PORT HARDY (CP) — Forty-eight passengers and a crew of three on a Pacific Western Airlines C-46 plane escaped injury late Friday when the plane skidded on a wet runway here in an emergency landing.

The plane, on a flight from Port Hardy to Vancouver, had turned back when trouble developed in one engine. The plane landed on the other.

The aircraft slid off the end of the runway into a cleared patch and was extensively damaged.

Behind the Teenage Curtain

Sharp, Hard-Hitting Provincial Action Needed

This is the sixth of a series of articles on the mounting problem of juvenile delinquency in Greater Victoria.

The cure for the mounting problem of juvenile delinquency calls for sharp, hard-hitting and co-ordinated action by the provincial government, welfare agencies, civic officials, police, and all community residents.

The Colonist has discussed the problems with numerous officials interested in juvenile behavior and has come up with a plan and a number of suggestions that could be the answer.

Emphasis has been placed on the preventive side of juvenile delinquency, coupled with a more realistic system for handling offenders once they get into trouble.

There is now a pitiful lack of co-operation among social workers, probation officers, schools, police, magistrates, children's aid groups, churches, recreation groups, service clubs and many other groups and individuals who go merrily on their own way to help the children.

Most of them do a good job, but they would do a much better job if everybody worked in the same direction.

First and immediate need would seem to be a special provincial department, a youth authority, to co-ordinate all activities in connection with juveniles including closer liaison between probation officers of the attorney-general's department and social workers of the welfare department which runs juvenile correctional institutions and administers foster home care.

This department could come under jurisdiction of a special B.C. committee, organized to deal with children and youth problems, and on this committee should be representatives of the attorney-general's department, welfare department, health and mental health departments, child guidance

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

BARRY Mather is fussing again about moving the British Columbia capital to Vancouver, or New Westminster.

He lives in that district, and writes a newspaper column, which he often uses as a Vancouver tourist pamphlet. Most of us agree that Vancouver is a fine place, but Mr. Mather works so hard trying to sell the town that we're beginning to suspect there is something wrong with it.

It irritates Mr. Mather that he can't step across the street and have a word with Mr. Bennett, or Mr. Bonner, whenever he is short of jokes to put in his column.

That's tough luck for him. However, I don't see why we should uproot tens of millions of dollars worth of buildings and thousands of civil servants, and spend a bushel of the taxpayers' money, to help him out.

Mr. Mather thinks that 80 miles is too far to go, to see his government.

However, the members of the legislature from Fernie, Cariboo, Fort George, Peace River, Prince Rupert, Atlin and such places cheerfully travel 300, 500 and 800 miles to sit in the legislature.

Another 80 miles doesn't make much difference to them. It will make even less difference when Vancouver and Victoria are 15 minutes apart by Rotodyne helicopter as they should be by 1970.

When you're riding a helicopter, you go at the same speed whether there is water or land beneath you. Islands no longer exist. Islands have been out of date for some time now.

Both Victoria and Vancouver are huddled into the far southwest corner of the province. Both of them are so far from the geographical centre that there is nothing to choose between them.

So what else is wrong with Victoria as a capital? Not enough people?

This doesn't seem to matter in the state of Illinois (Springfield, 81,628, is the capital, Chicago, 3,620,962 is not) or in the state of Washington (capital, Olympia, 15,819, biggest city, Seattle, 467,591, not counting suburbs); or in the province of New Brunswick (capital, Fredericton, 18,303, biggest city, Saint John, 52,491, or 86,015 with suburbs).

The biggest city in Canada, Montreal (1,620,758, with suburbs) is not the capital of anything. Both the provincial capital, Quebec City, 309,959, and the national capital, Ottawa, 345,460, are much smaller.

The biggest city in the United States, New York, 8,629,750, is not the capital of anything, either. New York and Montreal are both on islands. I suppose that is the reason why they never made the grade.

Victoria is too far from British Columbia's centre of population, says Mr. Mather.

Well, let's take a look at the capital of the United States, for an example. It's Washington, D.C. From Mr. Mather's viewpoint, Washington used to be a fine place for a capital.

In 1790, the population centre of the United States, the place that was nearest to most Americans, was just around the corner from Washington—near Baltimore.

Then people began settling the hinterland. By 1880, the United States' population centre had moved 570 miles west, to a point near Cincinnati, Ohio.

Now the population centre of the U.S.A. is somewhere in Illinois, more than 600 miles from Washington. Next century, it may be in Colorado. But the capital is still in Washington, and it's likely to stay there.

If the capital is to follow every shift in the population, we'll need a capital on wheels.

There used to be more people in Victoria than Vancouver. Now Vancouver has grown.

But there are some other places in B.C., too. By the year 2060, northern B.C. may be thickly settled, and an inland Mather clamoring to get the capital moved to Prince George.

We'd better have the Legislature meeting in a Barnum and Bailey tent, with roustabouts standing by to knock down the canvas and get the capital on the road.

LABOR MINISTER STARR
... 'recession over'

'Liberals Love Defeatism'

OTTAWA—Labor Minister Starr said Friday that "defeatism" is the stock-in-trade of the Liberals, who try to convey "doom and despair" to the Canadian public over unemployment.

Mr. Starr said that in every month of 1959 except January unemployment was less than in the same month in 1958. A total of 34,000 jobs had been provided this winter through winter works, while the total for all of last winter was 40,000.

Mr. Starr said Paul Martin (L. Essex East), is the only person in Canada who doesn't know the recession is over, and the Liberals had changed their policy of "do nothing" in government to "stop everything" in opposition.

The Canadian Labor Congress yesterday rapped Prime Minister Diefenbaker for his criticism of the CLC brief to the cabinet, regarding its demand for a Canadian protest against "apartheid" in South Africa. CLC reply "deeply regretted" Diefenbaker's statement.

John Drysdale (PC, Burnaby-Richmond) has served notice of the third private bill of the session dealing with capital punishment. He wants the death penalty only for murder of police officers.

The government isn't going to propose a revision of the Immigration Act at this session, Immigration Minister Fairclough indicated.

Defence Minister Peckles replied "no" when asked if the government has decided to buy a manned interceptor from the U.S.

CCF House leader Hazen Argue opposed any attempt to streamline Commons proceedings too much. He opposed particularly any suggestion to limit the length of a specific debate or a member's participation in it.

Robert McCleave (PC, Halifax) raised the question of fallout, suggesting that the government call a meeting of university professors who have been so vocal in opposition to nuclear tests, to get the proper information on dangers of radioactivity before the public.

Jail Has to Build Fence To Halt Wolf Whistles

DORCHESTER, N.B. (CP) — It's going to cost $1,500 to stop prisoners at Westmorland county jail from whistling at girls.

Municipal council, plagued with complaints about the wolf-whistling prisoners, voted to build a fence around the jail exercise yard. The fence will cost $1,500.

Carelessness Mounts

More Businesses Forget to 'Lock Up'

An upswing in carelessness by Victoria businessmen is worrying the city police commission.

Monthly report for November of Chief Const. John Blacklock said 94 business premises had been left insecure at night during the month.

His report for December gave the total as 116.

And as early as Friday the total for January was already well over 100.

In each case, someone forgot to lock a door, or left available some other easy means of entry.

In each case at least an hour of a police constable's time on duty was diverted to securing the premises.

At this week's commission meeting, chairman Mayor Percy Scurrell asked the chief: "What excuse do they give?"

"They say they just forgot," chief Blacklock replied.

Commission members are still considering the possibility of stern measures to check the growing fault. One suggestion has been that the merchants be billed for time taken by police.

Bible Film Set Monday

The story of how the Bible is changing India and bringing hope to millions is the theme of a motion picture to be shown Monday at 8 p.m. at First United Church.

Being shown for the first time in B.C., the color film was produced by the British and Foreign Bible Society.

The Courtroom Parade

Pair Fined For Frauds

Two men were fined in Colwood police court yesterday after pleading guilty to giving false statements of earnings in order to collect unemployment insurance benefits.

Arthur Harrison, 1732 Island Highway, pleaded guilty to eight counts, involving benefits totalling $74. He was fined $10 on the first and $5 on each of the others.

William Munro, 309 Island Highway, was fined $25 on the first of three counts, and given suspended sentence on the others. He pleaded guilty to the same charge.

Two Victoria district men pleaded guilty to charges of hunting migratory birds by night. William James Van Norman and Orin Linus Coates were fined $15 each. Charges were laid by the Game Branch.

Also in Colwood court a Langford juvenile was put on probation for one year, and ordered to pay $3 damages, after pleading guilty to breaking into the Langford Elementary School.

In city court Russell A. Cole, 400 Cuddehul, was fined $250 for impaired driving, $250 for criminally negligent driving, and had his driving licence suspended.

Fines of $25 were levied by Magistrate William Ostler against three people who pleaded guilty to failing to file income tax returns for 1958. The three were Bruce W. Aldridge, 832 Aral; Raymond J. Blacard, 472 Grafton; and Margaret P. Barter, 991 Snowdrop.

An 18-year-old boy who pleaded guilty to taking a car without consent of the owner, and to careless driving, was sentenced yesterday by Magistrate Ostler.

Robert Church, 1655 Howroyd, who had no previous record, was given suspended sentence on the first charge, and placed under bond of $250 to be of good behavior and follow orders of the probation officer for six months.

On the second charge he was fined $35 and had his driving licence suspended.

Where Superannuation Fails

REFERENCE in the Speech from the Lieutenant-Governor at the opening of the Legislature to the administration's intention of granting further help to retired civil servants has yet to be detailed by the ministry concerned, but there are few places where a thorough-going review would be more justified. A diminishing group of retired civil servants, many of whom gave the whole of their working years to the public service in British Columbia, were paid and pensioned in years when the value of the Canadian dollar in real terms was twice what it is today. Pensions which looked sufficient then have become pathetically inadequate unless there are other or personal resources to buttress them.

The system of superannuation in public life had no over-all plan at its inception. British Columbia teachers started it with a pension scheme of their own, to which the Province later gave some assistance. Superannuation scales for civil servants followed, but the initial scheme was not based on any actuarial plan and a few years later it broke down. Pension rates, antecedent personal contributions and the Province's share of such savings were revised in a composite scheme which is that in effect today. Municipal employees meanwhile paralleled the experience of provincial civil servants, under a separate scheme developed for them. But through the early years superannuation benefits tended to be written down, and not up. The postwar boom in Canada's economy was not, and could not have been, foreseen.

The result which for some years has been plainly and steadily accruing is that there undoubtedly are individual cases of human hardship in the lot of these senior citizens who gave their youth, so much of their lives and their abilities to the development of what has become one of the richest and most favored provinces in Canada. What a retirement pension of $40 monthly meant in 1934 it does not mean today, and numbers of civil servants have found that in their superannuation cheques. The municipalities have a comparable problem from the same reason: the shrinkage of monetary value is robbing the earlier superannuation schemes, public or private, of their ability to cope with what is first and last a human need situation.

The present administration has shown itself to be increasingly aware of the unevenness, and indeed in instances the human tragedy, of pension provisions which today simply do not provide. So reference in the Speech to this subject is very welcome. When the facts are examined it will likely be found that relatively few adjustments may be needed, and that pension schedules in recent times are capable of carrying themselves on a sound actuarial basis. The crucial need is to spot the remaining exceptions. These will uniformly affect men and women who were retired in much earlier times.

Defence and Discussion

A PROFESSOR at the Royal Military College in Kingston says that any bar to public discussion of defence policies would be a betrayal of democracy. If there is such a bar it is widely ignored. All kinds of laymen, individually and in groups, voice their opinions on this subject, as they have a right to do. They help to pay for the cost of defence. Since they are not experts of course their views may not always be sound.

This perhaps is what irks the professor. It is difficult to judge all he said by news extracts, but the gist of his complaint seems to be that defence officers and officials—the men with the inside knowledge—don't join in this public discussion. This is perhaps just as well; even the experts don't agree on things, and confusion is compounded when military men publicly take sides.

It can hardly be the function in any case of serving officers and officials of the defence department to voice opinions on matters of policy, and a pro or con comment these days is almost bound to infringe on policy. They are the professional and confidential advisers of the government, and it is the latter's responsibility alone to frame defence measures. If serving experts do not like the courses being followed they can resign, as some high-ranking officers have done. Then, having become members of the public at large, they can criticize their former employers to their hearts' content. Some of them do just that.

In ordinary business no one would expect an executive to criticize publicly his board of directors, or tell the world they are wrong in their various actions. That in fact would be impertinence as well as disloyalty. The situation is no different with military personnel. They have the opportunity to advise, urge and argue in private, but it is not their prerogative to enter into public differences with the department they are pledged to serve. It could not be any other way else democratic government would be chaotic and irresponsible. One may regret at times that military men are not more forthcoming vocally, but there is certainly no blackout as far as the nation is concerned. It can and does express its views on defence as it does on every other subject under the sun.

'Donations' Under Threats

ONE can only shake the head in amazement bordering on disbelief at the way things are shaping over the Thetis Lake Park business. Here is a park area which belongs to the people of Victoria. Yet some of those same people, just because they are interested in conservation and the protection of fish and game resources, are being coerced into putting up their own money to save part of the park from being alienated.

The coercion takes the form of a virtual threat to let the B.C. Electric have an easement through a corner of the park if the game clubs and others fail to put up the amount of money which the easement would yield to the City. This astonishing piece of extortion is justified on the score that the City needs money to develop the rest of the park and that it could get that money out of the B.C. Electric in return for transmission line accommodation. It would tell the company to go elsewhere, however, if an equal amount of money was forthcoming from "donations."

From time to time fund raisers have resorted to some barefaced devices, but this beats all: citizens being asked to pay out of their own pockets for the privilege of holding onto their own property. Of course some of those being dunned for money are not residents of the City and so are not entitled to a say in what the council does with the park; but those who are city taxpayers have a perfect right to feel annoyed.

Interpreting the News

Difficult Decisions

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ONE of the surprising aspects of the uneasy stand-off in Algeria is the transformation it has caused in French political attitudes.

Those who ecstatically acclaimed Gen. de Gaulle's return to power 20 months ago now defy his policies and denigrate his name.

Those who opposed his accession now applaud his efforts to end the settler uprising and bring about a Franco-Moslem reconciliation in strife-racked Algeria. Broadly, it is a case of the political left—Communist and non-Communist—against the extreme right.

For many of the men who now oppose de Gaulle, political somersaults are nothing new. Among the extremist right-wingers, often behind the scenes, are men of Vichy who called for his execution in 1940; hailed him in May, 1958; and now once again revile him.

For de Gaulle the choice must have been hard.

Had he given way before the settler rebels, his towering prestige—the in-tangible authority that has brought stability to France—would have been shattered.

"There is no precedent for a legend on the defensive," writes James Cameron in The News Chronicle, of London. He ordered a manifestly reluctant army to crush the revolt.

France's brooding father-figure, who quit his chieftain's role in January, 1946, in revulsion against the political manoeuvrings of lesser men, knew that this time he could turn his back and return to Colombey-les-Deux-Églises.

Yet the temptation must have been great. Until recently, he simply refused to take seriously any suggestion that upstart settlers would dare to intrigue against "le Grand Charles." An even bigger disappointment must have been the equivocations of the army.

Most commentators recognize great dangers in the present impasse. They see de Gaulle's careful efforts to rehabilitate France and re-establish Paris as one of the great diplomatic capitals possibly dissolving in anarchy and civil war.

"Hello, Gen. MacArthur? Does that company you work for need a foreign representative?"

How to Cure A Cough

By CASSANDRA, from London

AT this snowy, frosty, foggy time of the year I am glad to be able to offer my annual advice on how to cure a cough.

I do so in all humility, but as I have a cough so terrifying in its tearing intensity, so agonizing in its eldritch scream and so blood-chilling in its deep, hoarse diaphanous note, I happen to be something of an expert in this hacking business.

In fact, a proper cough-drop—as they say in Bernadette.

When I cough, bark drops from the holes of old oaks; asphalt bubbles on well-established pavements; spring grass goes a sticky grey; plate-glass pits and shivers into tiny, cold shards; clear country streams begin to boil; flowers in the hedgerows wilt and pine.

The startling on the wing hears the dreadful cry, lowers his undercarriage, changes the pitch of his props, puts his flaps down and makes for the rocky wood.

Hangmen feel their ropes; prison priests tell their beads and children cry out in their sleep.

As for myself, I reach for the cough-mixture.

There are two elementary principles about cough-mixtures that must be understood before you get to work.

The first is that they must taste abominable. Anything that has a pleasant flavor may be a pure waste of time. A good cough-mixture is reminiscent of gasometer paint, coffin varnish and the underwater preservatives that they used to apply to the stanchions on Deal pier before it was blown up in 1940.

The second is that they should be expensive. This is a melancholy fact, but cheap medicines rarely did anybody any good. The waters of witch-doctory demand some sacrifice from those who partake of them in order that they may be in the correct receptive self-kidding mood.

An important factor to be taken account of is the label.

Promising signs are that: "On no account may the mixture be given to infants"; "The prescribed dosage must not be exceeded"; "Don't shake the bottle"; "Always dilute with water"; "Keep away from naked lights"; "Stow away from boilers"; and "Use no hooks."

Other good omens are the frequent mention of poisons or potent substances in what the manufacturers call the "Active Constituents."

For instance, my present medication contains Infusion of Red Poppy Petals 1 in 8, 7.5% (Ah those Hong Kong nights!); Extract of Chloroform 0.50% (You big dope!); Acid Sulp. dil. 6.00%; Alcohol 1.25% (Yippee!); and a nice flavoring of Hydrochloric Acid dil. 0.19%.

Undeclared on the label but nevertheless undeniably present is a precipitate from rattlesnakes' teeth, fricassee of minced bicycle tires and that unmistakable piquancy that can only be obtained from the lower waters of the Ganges after a million votaries have paid their unhygienic respects to the Hindu God Siva.

Reports from Ottawa

THERE has not been, or at least not in the last hundred years or so, a proven case in which Canadian law hanged an innocent man.

This fact weakens one of the arguments of member of Parliament Frank McGee and others who are asking Parliament to abolish capital punishment. McGee contends that "the system is not sufficiently foolproof to justify taking a man's life."

However, there is sufficient doubt in a handful of cases to support speculation that justice may have miscarried.

For example, more than a century ago a man was hanged at Bath, Upper Canada, for stealing a watch. His defence that he had bought the watch in his possession from an itinerant peddler was disbelieved. Later—too late—a peddler turned up and, it's reported, admitted having sold a watch to the executed man. That's not airtight proof of innocence, but it's enough to raise doubts.

Much more recently—not quite three years ago—Wilbur Coffin was hanged for the murder of one of three bear hunters from Pennsylvania who were found slain in the Gaspe woods. Some persons believe Coffin was innocent of murder; that he merely came across and robbed the dead bodies. As McGee puts it, "Coffin escaped from jail in Quebec City—and then gave himself up. If I'd been guilty of murder, I'd have kept on going."

McGee also has serious doubts as to the guilt of Patrick Whelan, the man they hanged in 1868 for the shooting of D'Arcy McGee. The murdered man, victim of this country's only political assassination, was Frank McGee's great-uncle. D'Arcy McGee was the oldest of a large family of McGees; Frank's grandfather the youngest.

And then there is the case of Alex Wysochan, who was hanged in 1930 for murdering his wife. His lawyer, John Diefenbaker, never believed him, guilty. But none of the 32 convicted murderers whom Prime Minister Diefenbaker has saved from the gallows in the last 31 months would say Wysochan died in vain.

Tory MPs are speculating that Diefenbaker's hesitation about agreeing to a free vote on McGee's bill to abolish capital punishment for murder is because of the PM's concern lest opinion in the Commons and the country be too evenly divided on the issue.

They argue that it would be best if opinion were strongly one way or the other, rather than have the bill pass or be defeated by a vote or two. If Diefenbaker considers the margin too narrow, he may order the bill "talked out" in lieu of letting it come to a vote. Talking it out is a parliamentary tactic in which MPs deliberately use up all the time allotted to a bill, so that no time is left to vote on it.

Sen. Dave Croll's identical bill in the Upper House is intended to force a vote if Diefenbaker turns his thumbs down on the McGee bill. It would be decidedly awkward for the government to try to dispose of the Senate bill by talking it out in the Commons.

Impinging on the whole situation is the government's failure to act on a joint Senate-Commons committee recommendation a few years ago in favor of a more humane method of execution. A government bill to give effect to the proposal would require Diefenbaker to take a position in favor of keeping capital punishment. And this would be grossly incompatible with his feelings on the subject—feelings so strong, one of his aides says, that a cabinet decision not to commute a death sentence "makes for a rough day in cabinet."

The Packack

Insect Kingdom

By GREGORY CLARK

IF a psychiatrist, trying one of his processes on us, were to tell us to say what comes into our heads when he says the word "animal," most of us would say "horse" or "dog" or "cow." Mighty few of us would say spider, or butterfly or June Bug.

But insects belong to the animal kingdom along with fish, birds, snakes, as well as the more lordly members such as the hog, elephant, weasel, moose or man.

The reason I pick on this second to last day of January to mention this fact is that at this very minute, out there in the cold, wet or fury of mid-winter, under your lawn, on the twigs of your garden shrubbery, concealed in the cracks of the trees up and down the street, in every nook and cranny of that most hostile winter world, are most carefully preserved the immediate ancestors of all the bugs, mosquitoes, flies, moths, beetles, grubs, worms, hoppers, crickets, butterflies, bees and wasps that, by the countless billions, will be occupying our atmosphere by the time June comes round.

Think how fragile an insect is. It can be swatted, crushed with a flick of the hand.

Think with what infinite science we have sheltered and ensconced ourselves against the winter.

Think of those tiny eggs, cocoons, larvae, wisps, fragilities out there in the grip and grasp of iron winter, with no science whatever to assist them.

But they'll be there, come June.

Notes from UN

Why Housing Cost Is High

By PETER COUROPOULOS

CANADIANS who complain about the high cost of housing may perhaps find some comfort in the thought that they are not alone in feeling the pinch of rising prices in family dwellings.

A UN study on government policies and the cost of building shows that high building costs are at the core of the housing problem in almost all countries.

This study was prepared by the secretariat of the Economic Commission for Europe and examines the building industry and relevant government policies in Europe and the United States. It makes clear that the high prices paid for homes are due to the particular nature of the building industry.

A working-class dwelling in most countries now costs more in terms of average wages than at the beginning of the century. That has happened when the real cost of many other products has declined substantially in the last 20 or 30 years.

The situation in Denmark affords a good example. Building costs for a 1914 model home increased five times between 1914 and 1958. If a Danish standard home of the year 1958 were taken as yardstick, the difference would be still greater. Thus, building costs for a 1958 model home rose seven times between 1914 and 1958. At the same time the general level of wholesale prices rose only 3.4 times.

Similar trends were observed in almost all countries. They are due to the slow increase in productivity in the building industry as compared to that in other branches of the economy and in particular the manufacturing industries.

Thus houses will likely continue to rise in cost. Only some unforeseen radical change in the economics of the building process could reverse the trend.

The manner in which the building industry operates is costly because it is intricate.

First, the volume of demand, which is a determining factor in the growth of any industry, is traditionally fluctuating and unstable. The purchase of a new home is more easily deferred than that of other consumer necessities.

Also, new housing competes with the existing stock of dwellings which can either be more intensively occupied or discarded before becoming obsolete.

During periods of boom, the economic depreciation of a house is more rapid than its technical obsolescence. It was estimated, for example, that one in five families in the United States moves every year, often simply to live in a more modern home.

Housebuilding activity virtually ceased in Europe during the two world wars. Subsequently pent-up demand, inflated by destruction of dwellings, led to rapid upsurges in demand with the danger of creating a recession.

The high capital costs of a dwelling cause a further instability in demand because they render the market sensitive to credit conditions and interest rates.

So far no single technical development has offered the prospect of a radical decrease in the real cost of house building. Productivity has risen but not as strikingly as in the manufacturing industries. A house, in contrast with other necessities of life, calls for the assembly of a large volume of material. Constant effort is therefore required to reduce the cost of handling materials in bulk. Of course mechanical power replaces more and more human effort but there is still progress to be made in that direction. Particularly in building single dwelling units.

Low capital resources of building firms constitute a third reason keeping building costs high. In the United Kingdom, for example, building firms were estimated to have a capital which averages between one-quarter and one-third of a single year's turnover. Thus, there is widespread resort to short-term credit, with all the additional increases in cost it entails.

A fourth reason is the separation of the participants in the building process. Investors, architectural and technical designers, contractors and manufacturers of building materials work in many countries in almost complete independence of one another. Co-operation for a project is usually belated and does not start from its inception.

The UN survey includes some suggestions for government and international action. It recommends credit and financing facilities similar to those offered by Canada's CMHC to ensure continuity of demand.

It becomes obvious from the report that houses will remain expensive in most countries. Under current conditions, the industry does not lend itself to decisive cost-saving improvements.

Letters to the Editor

Tardy Mails

Why is it that all mail, unless sent by air, takes such an unconscionable time from mailing in Britain to delivery in Victoria?

Plenty of ships cross the Atlantic in seven days, and allegedly all first-class mail on main routes is carried by air in this country; yet letters mailed in London, first-class mail, are not delivered here till some three weeks later.

As for magazines and papers, rarely do they take less than a full month. This is especially regrettable, as anything which obstructs the flow of opinion and ideas between Canada and Britain weakens one's defences against the torrent of publicity and propaganda (much of it excellent and more of it plausible) from the United States.

I think the post office would win a lot of gratitude if they could manage to speed things up in this direction.

CHARLES PATEY.

275 Kerwood Avenue, View Royal.

Pigeons or Spies

It seems strange that in our city of Victoria, where according to the Dean of the Cathedral we have too many pigeons, the College of Dental Surgeons would stoop to hiring still more to trap a dental mechanic trying not only to help himself but also many who for lack of a commodity known as money, have to go dentureless. Interested in more ways than one.

(MRS. T.M.) MARGARET MOILLIET.

Why Keep Them?

It is some satisfaction to know that indignation has been roused by yet another outbreak of vandalism in Beacon Hill Park. However, why are the animals and birds kept there, in relatively limited quarters, exposed to repeated vicious attacks?

I, for one, protest.

H. BLUNDELL WALSH.

Auditorium Unnecessary

Victoria does not need an auditorium. One would not pay for itself. The one in the larger city of Vancouver will not pay for itself, so how could one here?

If it is such a good thing let the gentleman from Esquimalt, raise money among his own group and build a private one. The taxpayers of Victoria should have no part in it. We do not want another arena. Every church in Victoria has an auditorium as well as the arena, Armory, Royal Theatre and many others.

Get Started On Peace MLA Urges

"The Peace River project is ready to go. So let's get on with the job."

CCF Chiefs At Rites For Guthrie

When the legislature opened its sitting yesterday Opposition Leader Robert Strachan and his right hand man, Randolph Harding (CCF, Kaslo-Slocan) were missing.

They had gone to Lady-smith to attend the funeral of a veteran former CCF member Sam Guthrie, who was MLA for Cowichan-Newcastle between 1924 and 1949.

Mr. Strachan and Mr. Harding returned halfway through yesterday's sitting.

Council Faces Big Task

The mammoth task of providing recreation for 275,000 Canadian boys is moving nearer to completion in committee rooms at the Empress Hotel. Members of the Canadian General Council of the Boy Scouts' Association gathered at the hotel yesterday for one of their three yearly meetings, and will finish their plans and reports today.

Their task is not an easy one, but the steady growth of the Scout movement is a tribute to their success each year. Scouting combats juvenile delinquency simply because Boy Scouts don't have time to be delinquent; they are provided with too many interesting things to do, and at the same time they are trained to be better citizens.

Yesterday, it was announced that the National Jamboree, involving 3,000 Canadian Boy Scouts, will be held in 1961 at the Connaught Ranges near Ottawa.

Plans were also made for Canadian participation in the American Jamboree in Colorado Springs this July, a celebration marking the 50th anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America. Canada will send 500 Scouts to the jamboree.

For both jamborees, boys will be selected from all parts of Canada on a merit basis, and invitations will be limited to first-class Scouts. In this way, boys in the Boy Scout movement are given a goal at which to aim, as they are in all Scout activities.

That was the message of Stanley Carnell (SC, South Peace River) when he seconded the reply to the throne speech in the legislature yesterday.

"If we are not willing to do that, let's tell the people who will be screaming for power tomorrow, who is to blame when they can't have it," he said.

He said the Peace River people feel that area is "on the eve of tremendous growth and expansion."

Two sessions of the legislature should be held each year, Stanley Carnell told the legislature.

He suggested that an early spring session handle the budget and estimates for the coming fiscal year and a fall session the legislature.

The current sitting of the legislature will get into high gear Monday at 2:30 p.m. when Opposition Leader Robert Strachan leads off the opposition reply to the throne speech. George Gregory (L, Victoria) is the other speaker scheduled for Monday.

As its first order of business yesterday the legislative assembly asked Speaker Hugh Shantz to convey best wishes of the members to Premier Bennett, Archie Gibbs (L, Oak Bay) and Tom Bate (SC, Vancouver-Point Grey), who are absent from the session because of illness.

A Social Credit MLA, Donald Brothers, of Trail, will call upon the government on Monday to declare its stand in connection with the Columbia River hydro development.

The government is letting no grass grow under its feet before it tackles the problem of trading stamps in British Columbia.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner placed a notice of motion on the order paper stating that on Monday he will ask that a special committee of the House be appointed to study use of trading stamps in the marketing of consumer goods in B.C.

Work done by radio amateurs whenever they are called in to help in emergencies may be repaid in part by providing them with car licence plates bearing their own call letters, Stanley Carnell told the legislature.

Capital punishment was abolished in Holland in 1870, but practice had been discontinued many years previously.

Parking Lot Becomes a Lake

Clogged drains and heavy rains made a boat basin out of a half-acre super-market parking lot in Duncan. City employee Fred Schiller feeds fuel to one of two water pumps used in the lot. Deepest spot was three feet. Basements of many stores were flooded. —(Colonist photo by Charles Thompson.)

were restored in a matter of minutes.

In Duncan at least 15 homes in the First and Second Street area near Jubilee reported flooded basements, with water in some as deep as two feet.

Scrub Trees

Rocks and scrub trees slithered down a 60-foot bank in a sea of mud to bury the waterside road at Cowichan Bay yesterday morning, shoving three parked vehicles into a building.

Will Peck of Peck's Marine Service said the cars probably would have been demolished if the building had not been in the way. The cars were shoved so hard that the studs in the building's wall were broken.

The three vehicles, only slightly damaged, were owned by Mr. Peck's foreman, George Thompson, and Hugh Reid and Jens Jorgensen of Salt Spring Island.

6-19 Inches

F. R. Newham, city weather observer, said 3.3 inches of rain fell in the 24 hours ending 8:30 a.m. yesterday. There had been 6.19 inches in the last five days.

Of the 3.3-inch recording, Mr. Newham said, "That's the most I've ever recorded."

A Cowichan school district official said that five busloads of students, dismissed from Fairbridge Elementary School 30 minutes early, were detained when it was feared the Fairbridge bridge was weakened by the high water.

Five Homes

Five homes on the delta land near the Cowichan and Koksilah Rivers were cut off by the swirling water. Another house near the Koksilah River bridge was abandoned. But none was believed damaged.

"Apparently half the roads in the district are washing out," said highways department road foreman Ted Marsh. He counted eight slides at Cowichan Bay.

"All we can do is clear the path and try to stop any more damage," he said. "This is the usual November rain, and although the river came up fast, it could go down just as fast."

Torrent

"The area to watch now is the Trans-Canada Highway just south of the Mount Sicker Road, near Tail Timbers. There's a raging torrent going over it," he said.

Flash floods hit Nanaimo, following the heaviest rainfall in five years.

Nearly three inches of rain in a 30-hour period, added to swiftly melting snows on Mount Benson, created havoc in residential districts.

Washed Out

Part of the E & N track at Chase River was washed out; homes in suburban Lynburn, some valued at $35,000 were reported flooded; bridges over the swollen Chase threatened to give out under pressure of water and jammed logs, and many homes at Lantzville were cut off when Lantzville Creek overflowed.

Scores of cars were stalled in Harewood and drivers had to wade waist-deep through muddy water to get to dry land. Some homes were left without a domestic water supply as water mains broke. Manhole covers on Commercial Street were pushed off.

Highways department was pressing all available equipment into service, and hiring other equipment in an effort to assist the runoff to the sea.

An almost record 2 1/2 inches of rain hit Parkville during a 24-hour period, overflowing culverts and flooding basements.

Englishman's River overflowed its bank but there were no reports of damage to nearby property.

At Sidney, Wains Cross Road and Mills Road were covered with five inches of water at Patricia Bay Highway intersections.

Worst-hit area was around

Orchard Street, where Sidney North Saanich volunteer fire department worked from 7:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. with small pumps to clear flooded basements.

Langford fire department reported that Dewdney Flats was flooded and that further rain would likely make the road impassable.

RCMP detachments farther north reported little damage. No unusual accidents or dam-

Suicide Rate Soars

NANAIMO — Too many people are dying before reaching the age of 70, and too many are suffering mental illnesses within the Central Vancouver Island health unit. This is the opinion of health unit director Dr. C. J. G. MacKenzie who spoke to Nanaimo Rotarians yesterday.

He said that the unit's suicide rate per capita was the highest in Canada. Last year, 16 persons took their own lives against 24 others who died in highway, industrial or drowning mishaps.

There were many more mentally disturbed children in the schools nowadays, but the physical health of school students in general was good, he said.

No solution has yet been found to the mental health problem but a study will be conducted this year.

But if people want to live longer, then they must indulge in more physical exercise. "We do too much sitting around," he said.

'Cinderella' Wins Over Big Odds

VANCOUVER (CP) — Youthful Art Jones, 34, president of Vantel Broadcasting Company Ltd., at first couldn't believe his company had been recommended for the licence.

"Are you kidding?" he kept asking the reporter who gave him the news.

"The one thing that really pleases me is of being able to apply against seemingly impossible odds—and winning."

"It's fabulous. I think it is a pretty good country that we live in."

Vantel was considered the "Cinderella" of five applicants for the licence. Some of B.C.'s richest men were represented in the unsuccessful groups.

Mr. Jones, a former press photographer, started business on his own when he formed Artray Photographic-Studios after leaving the Vancouver Sun in 1947. He built this up into a film production company, Artray Limited.

Leonas and his wife had welcomed daughter Regina, 20, and son Tomas, 18, from Lithuania Thursday. A personal appeal to Soviet Premier Khrushchev in Iowa last summer won the release.

"I don't mind the windows because I have insurance," Leonas said. "But it upsets me that people should do such a thing on a day like this."

NEW YORK — Gen. Douglas MacArthur, 80, this week was admitted to hospital for observation. Nature of his illness was not stated.

LONDON — Earl Beatty, 54, was taken ill shortly after honeymooning with his 18-year-old bride.

NEW YORK — "Good night, my sweet, my bewitched, my lost Diana," was the start of the eulogy read at actress Diana Barrymore's funeral by Gerold Frank, who wrote her biography "Too Much, Too Soon." The 350 mourners included playwright Tennessee Williams, Bobo Rockefeller and silent film stars Nita Naldi and Peggy Fears.

BRISTOL, England — Barbara Rogers, 19, resigned as temperance queen of Bristol. Reason: She's taken to drink — in moderation.

PIETERSBURG, South Africa — Negro leader Frank Masemule draped a giant leopard skin across Prime Minister Macmillan's shoulders to proclaim him "honorary paramount chief" of all Bantu tribes in the northern Transvaal.

DETROIT — "Sugar Chile" Robinson, one-time child entertainer, cashed in his boogie-woogie piano style to the tune of $100,000, an accounting disclosed on his 21st birthday.

MOSCOW — Nikolai Belyayev, fired as top Communist in Kazakhstan for letting a grain harvest be destroyed by snow, has been named party secretary in Stavropol, Northern Caucasus, where former premier Nikolai Bulganin was banished in 1958.

HAYWARD, Calif. — Foundry worker Billy Smith, 25, whose right leg was sewn back on last July in what was termed an unprecedented, near-miracle of surgery, has lost the long gamble to save it. Because of complications, doctors will have to amputate soon.

SAN FRANCISCO — Judge Louis Goodman rejected the personal appeals of Cary Chessman for freedom but

Vandals Wreck Joyous Reunion

CHICAGO — Vandals provided a bitter hangover to the reunion of the Paulius Leonas family.

The family awoke from its first night together in 16 years to find the windows of their home smashed or smeared with oil.

Leonas and his wife had welcomed daughter Regina, 20, and son Tomas, 18, from Lithuania Thursday. A personal appeal to Soviet Premier Khrushchev in Iowa last summer won the release.

"I don't mind the windows because I have insurance," Leonas said. "But it upsets me that people should do such a thing on a day like this."

Blundering Amateur Puts Airport Into Flap

LONDON (AP) — Robert S. Bell, an amateur pilot, was fined £200 ($560) yesterday for messing up the traffic pattern over London Airport. He got lost and blundered over the airport in his unlighted small plane forcing the control tower to radio a frantic "as you were" to all incoming commercial airliners. Stacked up for three to 25 minutes while Bell circled around were 10 planes, including a jetliner in-bound from New York.

Bell's plane had neither navigation lights nor lights on its instrument panel. Bell said he was reading his instruments by the flame of his cigarette lighter.

RALEIGH, N.C. — Engineering student Marvin Hughes, 20, was arrested for using his slide rule as an aid to passing exams. Police said he used it to break into a college classroom to steal examination papers.

BURNS LAKE — Paddy Isaac, 62, a spokesman for Indians in this area, was fatally injured when hit by a car driven by a family friend, Harry Crammer, 20.

LONDON — A. C. Hartley, who thought up "Pluto," the Second World War gasoline pipeline under the English Channel, died at 71.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. — On advice of her doctor, Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower has cancelled plans to accompany the president on his trip to South America next month.

MIAMI — Police arrested DiWitt Addison, 31, when he tried to exchange $280 in scorched bills at a bank. He burned the money with a blowtorch when he opened a supermarket safe last week.

OTTAWA — Mrs. Angela Benkovic, 28-year-old Yugoslav refugee mother who gave birth to a son on her way to Canada, arrived here from Iceland in an RCAF Comet aircraft.

Jury Travels Miles To Feed Juror's Dog

CHICAGO (UPI) — Oscar Olson's dog was hungry, so a criminal court murder jury drove 28 miles to feed it.

"I thought I'd seen everything," Judge Davidson said as the jurors piled into a chartered bus and drove to suburban Glenwood to feed the animal.

The impromptu trip came up last night after Canel told the jurors they would be locked up overnight during a recess in the trial.

"You can't do that, judge," Olson, a bachelor, protested. "I've got a dog that has to be fed. I've got to get home."

"I can't let you go," the judge answered. "Under the law, I can't break up the jury panel. But never fear, we'll send a bailiff to do the job."

"Oh, you don't know my dog!" Olson said.

William Izzo, bailiff assigned to feed the dog, piled at this information and suggested hiring a bus to take the jury to the dog.

"My boy," the judge said approvingly, "you have the wisdom of a judge."

The bus was hired forthwith and the jury climbed in and drove to Glenwood, where Olson fed the dog and arranged with neighbors to save taxpayers' money by taking care of the pet for the duration of the trial.

HARTFORD, Conn. — Howard Doucette, who served two years of a life sentence for killing his three-month-old son in a gas oven in 1958, was freed on probation after the state supreme court upset the conviction.

NEW WESTMINSTER — Craig Munroe, prominent New Westminster lawyer, was nominated Progressive Conservative candidate in the next provincial election.

High Schools Harbor Nazi Youth Parties

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — A frightening dossier of information and material chronicling the birth of a neo-Nazi youth movement was uncovered by police Friday as they sought the bombers of a Kansas City synagogue.

Police searched lockers in two Kansas City high schools and found school textbooks inscribed with swastikas, student-drawn sketches of German soldiers and a world map showing the final voyage of the pocket battleship Graf Spee, sunk off the coast of South America in 1939.

IDEAS GO ON
In one locker, officers found this message: "Our founder is Adolf Hitler. The war ended in 1945. The ideas of National Socialism have not ended."

Another locker yielded this message, penciled on the back of an examination paper: "Our party is joining with the National Socialist German Workers party that is based at Southeast High."

80 MEMBERS
Police said the Kansas City group, calling itself the Nordic Reich Youth Party, had chapters at Southeast High School and East High School, with an estimated total membership of 80 boys.

"Most of the boys had German-type names," they added. Twelve youths have admitted membership in the party, and produced Nazi uniforms, swastika armbands and German medals.

CACHE FOUND
At the home of one boy, police found a small cache of explosives, identified as army M-8 charges, armbands and a number of Nazi photographs.

Officers said they were unable to connect any member of the youth group with the synagogue bombing, but were questioning 15 youths extensively.

Investigation of the youth group was already started when a bomb shattered 51 windows in the synagogue. No one was hurt.

School authorities expressed a belief the Nazi youth group was composed of "odd balls who generally do not fit in well with normal school activities."

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Remains of three bodies were found Friday night in the burned-out hull of the fishboat Emba which burst into flames during a party early Friday morning and burned for seven hours.

Police were unable to identify the victims and could say only that one of the three victims was a man. No positive identification was expected for at least 24 hours.

Bach Music
Proves Best
At Symphony
By BERT BINNY
An extremely pleasant and varied program featuring guest pianist Lloyd Powell was given last night at Duncan by the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.
Mr. Powell showed a very definitive style in playing Bach's concerto for piano and strings in D minor and Delius piano concerto in C minor, and was heard to perhaps the best advantage in the "grave" movement of the Bach work.
The orchestra played Mozart's
39th symphony and Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Capriccio Espagnole." The strings, having performed admirably with Mr. Powell in the Bach, proceeded from power to power in the Mozart. Especially lovely was the minuet movement.
This concert will be repeated at the Royal Theatre Sunday at 3 p.m. and Monday at 8.30 p.m.

Around the Alleys

Annual Tournament Scheduled Feb. 6 By Civil Servants

By JIM TAYLOR

Once a year members of the B.C. Government Employees' Association take over Capital City Bowling Alleys for one day. The result is one of the largest fivepin tournaments of the year.

They go at it again Feb. 6 from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., and 40 or more teams are expected to compete for the Hon. Robert Mayhew Trophy.

Bowling will be divided into four shifts, with each team made up of workers from one of the various government offices. The teams form one of the biggest leagues in Greater Victoria.

Bob Hodges was top man in the fivepin leagues at Capital City this week with an 842 (346) series. Other high bowlers were Stan Bell, with 834 (320) and 793 (320); Cy Wallis, 823; Don Corbett, 819 (303) and 801 (305); Cy Waters, 794 (308); Reg Waggoner, 776 (302) and 764; Harry Cool, 761; Jerry Girard, 758 (306), and Mrs. V. Harrison, 749.

At Esquimalt Bowladrome, George Adams set a new high three of 921 (348) in the Monday men's league for the top score of the week. He was followed by Arnie Gibson, 833 (339); Norm Martin, 821 (300); Ron Chamberlain, 785 (309); Dave Allan, 785 (330); Cy Waters, 772 (309); Bob McLeod, 771 (312) and 744 (305); Harry Booth, 765; Doug Crawford, 734, and Marge Goldie, who led the ladies with 707.

W. Peterson was the best of the fivepinners at Gibson's Bowladrome with 802 (308). V. Harrison, 779 (310); Cy Waters, 769 (302); Reg Waggoner, 754, and Frank McGrath, 749 (300).

Bel-Air Cabinets won the second round of the senior tenpin league at Gibson's Tuesday night, and will roll off at season's end with Manufacturer's Life, first-round winners, and the winner of the upcoming third round.

Team members are Walt Davis, Will Smith, Lloyd Chow, Herb Chandler, Roy Harris and Sheldon Nipp.

The Manufacturer's club finished second this round, followed by Victoria Van and Storage, Suncrest, Sunbeam, Shearings, Drake Hotel, and Prince Mary, Gorge Hotel, and Bapco Paint.

The fight for high average in the senior league continues, with Nipp and Jim Mills tied at 191 and Roy Begg breathing down their necks as usual with 190.

Charlie Cowie was high man in both senior tenpin leagues this week, with 590 (241) at Strathcona Bowling Alleys, and 579 at Gibson's.

Other high scorers at Gibson's were Jim Mills, 577; Don Shaw, 577; Nip Sage, 574 (222); Jack Hobbs, 564, and Roy Harris, 560. Bonita Eng was the best of the ladies with a fine 541 series.

At Strathcona, Nipp rolled 573 (219); Joe Richards, 566 (203, 211); Cec Dixon, 563 (206); R. Bussey, 560 (205), and Will Smith, 554.

Campy Carries On, A Lesson in Faith

GLEN COVE, N.Y. (AP)—On the wall of Roy Campanella's bedroom hangs a small plaque with this inscription: "Before you can score, you must have a goal. Your goal is to walk again and with God's help, you will score."

Campanella prizes the plaque as much as any of the dozens of awards he received as a big league baseball player. "I look at it every day, and every time I look at it I get a big lift," Roy said in an interview. "I haven't walked for two years now and I still have no response at all from my legs. But deep inside of me I will walk again."

Today marks the second anniversary of a car accident which left Campanella, former star catcher with the Brooklyn Dodgers, paralyzed from the waist down.

"It isn't as bad as one might think," said Roy, working his arms and shoulders from a sitting position in his electrically controlled wheelchair. "In fact, I'm grateful for all the things I've been able to do."

What impresses people most upon first contact with Campanella is his cheerfulness. "Why shouldn't I be cheerful? Except for sitting in a wheelchair, I'm leading a normal life. Physically, I've come along very well. My arms are much stronger. I have some feeling in my fingers ...

"To me, the most important thing is that I'm able to support my family. That's the purpose of every man in this world."

Campanella, 38, has had his own daily network radio show for more than a year. He recently began a local weekly television show. He also will handle the in-between portion of 16 doubleheaders of New York Yankee games next season. Campy also owns and operates a liquor store in Harlem.

Speaking Briefly

Paret vs. Scott Again Sizzler

Cuba's Benny "Kid" Paret and Charlie Scott put on another rousing battle last night in Madison Square Garden with Paret getting a split decision in the 10-round welterweight fight to make it two in a row over the hard-hitting Philadelphia.

It was an all-out scrap from the start, even better than their Dec. 18 meeting in which Paret had a clear decision.

But it was different this time as Scott got to Paret in the seventh and eighth rounds with some solid punches. The difference at the finish was a dubious knockdown credited to Paret. He caught Scott moving away and the latter spun around. Referee Petey Della ruled that Scott's glove had touched the floor and ruled it a knockdown although Scott appeared unhurt.

The knockdown, if it was one, cost Scott the fight. Judge Leo Birnbaum gave him the fight on points, 8-7, after calling it even at 5-5 in rounds. Della scored it 5-4-1 for Paret and Judge Joe Eppey had those figures reversed in favor of Scott. The Associated Press scored it the same as Birnbaum.

But all is not lost for Scott. It was announced before the fight was over that the pair would be rematched over 12 rounds with the winner to get a title fight against champion Don Jordan.

MASON RUDOLPH, who scored a record 63 on Thursday, Mike Souchak, Bob Goaly and Johnny Post are in a four-way tie for the lead at the half-way mark of the 72-hole San Diego open golf tournament. All have 135.

Scoring was so low that Billy Maxwell, Jack Burke, Lloyd Mangrum, Ed Furgol and Jack Fleck failed to survive the cut to the low 60 and ties ... Rocco Perclavalle, 210-pound fullback from Montana State, has been signed by Winnipeg Blue Bombers ... Alex Omedo made his debut with Jack Kramer's professional tennis troupe Thursday night by scoring a 6-4, 6-2 win over Tony Trabert ... PHIL WATSON ... soon jobless?

Watson Takes Off Muzzle; Rangers May Remove Job

NEW YORK (UPI)—Phil Watson, the New York Rangers' former coach who was kicked upstairs when his ulcer kicked up earlier this season, today admitted he was seeking new employment after needing the Rangers in a radio interview.

"I'm still on the Ranger payroll but I don't think they have any plans for me next season," said the fiery Canadian who took over as the team's farm director when Alfie Pike replaced him.

Asked if he had received any coaching bids from other National Hockey League teams, Watson said, "No, but I'm always open for offers."

Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Soccer League teams are advised that all weekend games have been cancelled due to unplayable fields. No parks are to be used by these teams. Practices are not permitted on fields during the Canadian citizen in the spring ... Don Brandy, 30-year-old end coach from the University of Montana, has been signed as line coach by the B.C. Lions ... Tony Lee looms as the probable favorite for today's running of the $166,490 Santa Anita Maternity but will have plenty of competition from King O'Turf, First Landing and Bagdad. Tony Lee will carry top weight of 123 pounds, King O'Turf only 115 pounds.

Watson would remain with the team as farm director next season, Muzz hesitated and then replied: "That's a long way off, but I don't think so."

Wednesday night but later conceded the remarks "weren't as bad as they were first pictured."

"I don't want to be drawn into this thing because Phil's my friend and has been for many years," Patrick added. However, when asked if Watson would remain with the team as farm director next season, Muzz hesitated and then replied: "That's a long way off, but I don't think so."

A reader who does not believe God exists writes: "Please provide an adequate and satisfactory explanation why he, or that, whom or which you call 'God,' condones and apparently does nothing to eliminate poverty and divisions in denominations."
He goes on to say: "In a world having an abundance of food (3,000,000 bushels of wheat stored in Prairie granaries) three small children out of five are at this moment frightfully hungry."

The gentleman is right. I cannot now explain. I haven't all the answers but a few and I'll give them to you.
You and I are responsible for conditions as they are. God does not "condone" what we are doing and he has told us so in no uncertain language. And you know it.

THE VOICE OF ONE

By REV. DR. FRANK S. MORLEY

A man and his wife in their early thirties came in to see me. The wife had just got tired of her husband and wanted to leave him. When I reminded her of the marriage vows she retorted, "Oh, that's just something you say in church."
Should not the fact you take a vow in Church make it still more sacred? No other oath could be more serious. If the marriage vow cannot be believed, what vow can?

No promise, no contract, can be as safe if a man or woman treats the marriage vow as trivial. Such people are liars, just plain liars, who can never be believed.
MEANING
Think of its meaning for a moment. The bride procession down the aisle describes life's journey. The flower girls represent the bride in childhood, the bridesmaids her youth, the maid of honour her supporting friends.
She comes down on her father's arm because hitherto she has been dependent upon him. This responsibility he transfers to the husband.
The groom is also supported by loyal friends in the ushers and best man. Families and friends in the pews represent the love and loyalty surrounding the couple. Then they go together down the aisle on the new way of life.

PLAIN TRUTH
The service we use is similar to that used at the marriage of the Queen. The opening words are, "Except the Lord build the house they labour in vain that build it."
This is no mere hyperbole. Nothing good can be built by

Cautious Move

LONDON (Reuters) — The stock market moved cautiously following Thursday's decline on Wall Street.

Gilt-edged securities met a good investment demand and recorded widespread gains, but dollar stocks were lower.

There were a number of gains in the industrial market, especially in tobacco, textile and store issues. Steel and engineering shares were irregular and oil issues were mainly lower.

'Capitalist Trick' Works Well

Reds Buying on Time

Carrying Charges One-Two Per Cent

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

Installment buying has been officially introduced in the U.S.S.R. and this capitalistic "trick" as the Soviets used to call it is working well according to Business Week magazine.

Time-purchase articles are limited to those which are in plentiful supply, and the system has stimulated sales to show that Russians like the idea.

Frederic W. Somerton, who started his transportation career at Prince George with Canadian National Telegraphs in 1925 has been appointed assistant to the vice-president-operations of Canadian National Railways. He was previously assistant chief of transportation.

Payments are made by the employer or trade union on the buyer's wages, and the only limit is that he must not commit more than half his income to time payments.

DRILLERS BUSY
In contrast with recent experience, the oil industry in western Canada is suffering from a shortage of drilling rigs.

Spate of new exploration in northern B.C., northern Alberta, the Yukon and Northwest Territories is responsible.

One company preparing to drill in northern Alberta says every drilling rig is contracted for the next four months.

Drilling in the far north is at its peak in the winter and spring months while the muskeg is frozen solid on top of the permafrost.

CLEARINGS DROP AGAIN

Bank clearings dropped again from their 1958 levels in Victoria this week, when the Clearing House total was $8,064,121. In the corresponding week of 1959 the total was $8,981,054.

DU PONT RESULTS

Du Pont of Canada Ltd., increased its sales by 11 per cent and its net profit by 37 per cent in 1959.

The net profit of $7,169,000 (97 cents a share) compared with $5,235,000 (70 cents) in 1958, while net sales rose to $90,992,000 from $81,916,000. Current tax liability rose to $1,480,000.

OIL'S BETTER YEAR

Sales and profit of Canadian Industries Ltd. rose from the 1958 levels according to the preliminary report on the 1959 workings.

Net income for the year was $245,000 (70 cents a share) against $170,000 (58 cents a share) in 1958.

Sales at $148,995,000 were up six per cent on the year. Income tax of $6,246,000 was up 21 per cent over the 1958 figure.

Domestic and export sales for "Terylene" polyester fibres were considerably higher and the output of ammonia doubled.

Nathanael V. Davis, president of Aluminum Ltd., has been elected a director of Canada Life Assurance Company.

BUSINESS SLACKENS

A slackening off of business in the latter part of 1959 was noted by Dominion Oilfield and Linoleum Company Limited although sales and profit were ahead of 1958.

Consolidated net profit was $2,162,712 ($2.85 per common share), against $2,049,799 ($2.70).

Ken B. Robertson, president, said that the slow-down in sales could be attributed to the tight money situation.

Vain Monster Hunted

ZOMBA, Nyasaland (Reuters)—Game wardens yesterday were checking reports of a shaggy "monster" that combs its long black hair with its hands.

The barrel-chested, 4½-foot-tall beast with a bear-like gait has been lurking in forest in Northern Nyasaland, according to both Europeans and Negroes who say they have seen the heavily-built animal. They say it silently watches the Africans are calling it them at work from the trees "ufiti," which means ghost, before flitting away.

Thetis Ruling Put Off—'Up for Auction' Says McEwen

A decision on the proposed Thetis Lake power-line easement was postponed yesterday in city council. The B.C. Electric asked if we would delay it a couple of weeks.

Mayor Percy Scurrell said. But before council turned to other things. Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said he understood the Vic-Van Isle Kinsmen Club was considering devoting boat show profits to Thetis Lake Park development, to compensate for revenue lost if the easement isn't granted. Ald. Elmer McEwen questioned whether it was fair to ask conservationists and others to put up the equivalent of the easement revenue for park development. "If different groups raise $5,000, and then the B.C. Electric says $10,000, they're going to say $15,000, and the B.C. Electric $20,000—It's been put on the auction block now, hasn't it?" Mayor Percy Scurrell said no, a deal was a deal. Prof. Lewis Clark, vice-president of the Thetis Lake Nature Sanctuary Association, and P. M. Monckton of the Victoria Natural History Society, advised council, opposing granting of the easement. Council referred to its water works committee, without hearing them, 14 letters opposing the easement.

To City Hall

Royal Head Moved

A bust of Queen Elizabeth commemorating last year's royal visit may not be placed in Beacon Hill Park after all, but at least it's going, temporarily, to a better place than the Garbally public works yard.

City council decided yesterday to have the bust—the work of sculptor Peggy Walton Packard—moved for the time being to City Hall, while a committee tries to decide whether it should go to the park, the art gallery, or where.

VANDALISM

Original plan was to place it in the park, near the Burns monument.

But Ald. Austin Curtis said there was so much vandalism in the park he wondered how long it would last there. Ald. Elmer McEwen suggested the art gallery, and won some support.

"I would think our lobby would be too close to home," said Ald. Hugh Ramsay, referring to the fact that Saanich and Oak Bay are helping to pay for it.

But Ald. Curtis didn't want the bust left at Garbally yard any longer, and council agreed it should be moved to City Hall pending a decision.

Injured Boy 'Satisfactory'

Swindler At Work

EX-MLA Lydia Arsenault last night told police she had given $6 to a confidence man at her View Street shop.

Before the man came in she got a phone call asking her to tell him his child had been burned, and he was to get $6 worth of medicine at a drugstore. She gave him the money, because she believed he had none.

It was the second such swindle here in 24 hours.

Charity Survey

Feb. 15-20

A mail survey to find out how Victoria residents feel about supporting a United Appeal charitable campaign rather than the many now being held will be conducted Feb. 15 to 20.

Special committee of the Community Chest yesterday voted to make the survey, asking whether Victorians would like to see an amalgamation of Chest agencies with the six largest national health organizations, which now conduct their own appeals.

These would include Canadian Red Cross, Salvation Army, Multiple Sclerosis Association, Cerebral Palsy Association, Canadian Heart Fund, and the B.C. Cancer Foundation.

When mothers of Greater Victoria start marching from door to door at 7 p.m. today, the help you give may bring about a happy ending for another child as it already has for four-year-old Joann Jensen.

Joann was stricken with polio last October. It affected her left leg. She never had to be put in an iron lung, of course, but there was that frightening possibility of lasting lameness.

BRIGHT-EYED

Bright-eyed, merry little Joann responded to treatment and therapy.

Just before Christmas she left the hospital for home and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pieter Jensen, 530 Hillside, and her three sisters and brother.

The therapy continued. She could only be on her feet for an hour a day when she came home. Now she can hardly be singled out in the household of active youngsters.

EXERCISE GOOD

Today there's only one muscle left weak. It runs down her left foot to her big toe. Joann can't stand alone on her toes yet, but the exercises she does every day are proving good.

Doctors tell Mrs. Jensen that when Joann starts kindergarten in September she should be completely well again.

Her therapy, plus the medical and hospital care, were taken over by the B.C. Foundation for Child Care, Polio-myelitis and Rehabilitation—and that's what the Marching Mothers are supporting to-night.

FULL HEALTH

Care like that bringing Joann back to full health is not the only concern of the Foundation.

The Foundation also sponsors neurological research;

supports a chair of education at UBC for training of teachers for handicapped children; conducts a speech and hearing program in a clinic for handicapped youngsters on Gorge Road; recently purchased an 18-acre estate for the Family and Children's Service to be used for emotionally disturbed boys.

This is the work the Foundation does.

Mickelson Elected President

Harvey Mickelson was elected president of the Victoria branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association at the annual meeting last night.

Ray Buckett was elected first vice-president and Ralph Fell, second vice-president. Nigel Turner is the new treasurer and Mrs. Vivian Carbery, secretary.

They moved from the Empress Hotel to Government House yesterday for a visit with the lieutenant-governor and Mrs. Ross until Sunday.

Best of Taste (The new Government House, Mr. Gordon said, is wonderful, and in the best of taste.)

In a brief interview, he also had a few words to say about railway union "featherbedding" and the future of railway passenger service.

The first thing he said about featherbedding was that he doesn't like the word; he avoids it.

GOOD REASON

It refers, he said, to working rules and practices that fitted their day. "There was usually good reason for the commencement of these practices. But they have been outmoded through new technology and new ideas in the industry."

Excavation work is lagging at the Cathedral Hill site of the new Victoria Law Courts and will not be completed by the deadline, which was to have been Sunday, but has been extended two weeks.

Tenders for the second phase, construction of the basement parking area, are expected to be called in the next two weeks, and work should start within a month.

Drive Spans Ocean

A telephone conversation between Junior Chamber of Commerce presidents in Victoria and Hong Kong last night completed arrangements for Victoria Jaycees' clothing drive.

Peter Forward, president of Victoria Jaycees, phoned John McKenzie, president of the Hong Kong chapter which will receive and distribute clothing collected in the Victoria drive.

"We were assured of their complete co-operation," Mr. Forward said. "So people contributing clothing will know that it is going straight to those who really need it, and not through the black market that flourishes there."

Objective of the drive is three tons of clothing. Contributions may be taken to the Mason Street entrance of First Baptist Church, corner of Mason and Quadra Streets. Members of the Jaycees are repairing some of the clothing.

Cadets Parade Tomorrow

Rear-Admiral H. S. Rayner, flag officer Pacific Coast, will inspect a wing parade of officer cadets of the Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, Sunday commencing at 10 a.m.

A total of 165 cadets of the senior and junior classes will take part in the parade and church service which follows. Music will be provided by the naval band of HMCS Naden.

Canadian National Railways president Donald Gordon said he thinks "Victoria will be far better served if it supports Trans-Canada Air Lines—the continuation of main line service."

OLD, OLD FRIEND

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon came to Victoria to see the legislative session opened by Mr. Gordon's "old, old friend," Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross, a ceremony which the CNR president thinks is better performed in B.C. than in any other province.

They moved from the Empress Hotel to Government House yesterday for a visit with the lieutenant-governor and Mrs. Ross until Sunday.

BEST OF TASTE

(The new Government House, Mr. Gordon said, is wonderful, and in the best of taste.)

In a brief interview, he also had a few words to say about railway union "featherbedding" and the future of railway passenger service.

The first thing he said about featherbedding was that he doesn't like the word; he avoids it.

Broadcast Board Breaks Monopoly in Vancouver

Viewers in the Greater Victoria area and up-Island can look forward to generally improved television reception as the result of two decisions announced yesterday by the Board of Broadcast Governors.

The board approved a competitive TV station for Vancouver—thus breaking the monopoly held by the CBC in metropolitan areas—and an increase to maximum power for CHEK-TV, Victoria.

The power boost for the local station is expected to be come effective in early July, when it is hoped the new transmitter will begin operating from Saturna Island.

Its effect will be a strong signal on Channel 6 beaming into up-Island communities as far north as Campbell River and covering the lower mainland and Fraser Valley areas.

Good, Clear Picture

Charles R. White of Sidney, former operating manager of CHEK-TV here, now associated with the new Vancouver station, said many parts of Greater Victoria will get a good, clear picture on Channel 6 with rabbit ears. He said local reception was covered in the group's submission to the BBG.

Another Victoria businessman associated with the new station is J. Denis Hagar of Hagar Investments.

Mr. Hagar said the BBG decision will "open up a whole new era" in television in this province. He said the Van-Tel submission laid great emphasis on development of local talent and pledged the new station to predominant use of Canadian shows.

D. M. Armstrong, president of CHEK-TV, said the power boost will permit extended coverage by the local station to east coast communities on Upper Vancouver Island.

"It will also enable us for the first time to reach the Seattle-Tacoma area and tell the residents of the Pacific Northwest of the beauties not only of Victoria but the whole of Vancouver Island."

He added the new transmitter when its power is boosted from 1.8 Kw (video) to 100 Kw, and from 9 Kw (audio) to 50 Kw, will reach as far as Hope on the mainland. Completion date of the new transmitter depends on delivery of equipment.

The BBG also granted a second TV licence for Winnipeg. The successful applicant was Ralph S. Misener and Associates.

Formal ratification of the new licences must come from the cabinet in Ottawa.

Whether or not the transcontinental railways will stay in the passenger business over the years ahead, Mr. Gordon said, is the $64 question, "but we are making a very strenuous effort to devise incentives to the public to travel by rail in larger numbers."

Mr. Smith, who moved the reply to the Throne Speech, also asked that the federal government be pressed by the legislature to keep its promise to build a new terminal building and extend the runways at the Patricia Bay Airport.

He congratulated the Victoria University Council, the Victoria Chamber of Commerce and others, and also praised the strong backing from local newspapers, especially The Daily Colonist, for being "so persistent about having our Victoria College take on the status of a university."

He was enthusiastic about the new government ferries which will go on the run between Tsawwassen and Swartz Bay. "Business people and residents of the area will experience a new prosperity which they never had before," he said.

He said the two-ferries now being built "will be the most modern afloat on the Pacific Coast" and described the service as "another feather in the cap of the Social Credit administration."

He said the government was pleased that Royal Jubilee Hospital is going ahead with a $3,000,000 construction program and St. Joseph's Hospital with a $2,000,000 building project.

Mr. Smith claimed the most important and beneficial events to the people of B.C. since Confederation took place in the last decade under the Social Credit regime.

"Liquidation of our direct debt was without a doubt the big accomplishment of the '50s," he said. "... we are now entering the grand and glorious 60s."

Follow Birds To Reach Repair Shop

A seagull sent a Victoria-bound Trans-Canada Air Lines DC-3 back to Vancouver for repairs yesterday.

The gull crashed into the door just aft of the pilot's compartment shortly after the plane took off.

The plane, with eight passengers on board, returned to Vancouver and was taken out of service for repairs.

Premier Retains Interest

Premier Bennett continued yesterday to take an animated interest in the goings-on of the legislature.

He sat up in a chair for three-quarters of an hour yesterday afternoon in his room at St. Joseph's Hospital, where he is recovering from a kidney operation.

He asked his executive assistant, Dan Ekman, about the speeches given yesterday afternoon, read with interest newspaper accounts of the first day of the session, and discussed planning for the rest of the current session.

The premier has his budget, estimated to be around $325,000,000, but has not worked on it for the last few days. It is understood it is all but ready for presentation about Feb. 12.

Shrine Officers

No Cost To City For Probe

A survey which may be the forerunner to, a determined attempt to bring more secondary industry to Victoria will be made without charge to the city, council heard yesterday from Mayor Percy Scurrell.

The B.C. Electric Company will pay for the survey by the Western Development Company, and, the mayor said, "They'll be coming in next week to make a survey and recommendations."

The city's own staff in the meantime will gather information on climate, transportation, utilities, sites, wage scales, housing, price, and so forth, the mayor said. "So I think maybe at least we have got things moving so we will have information available if and when we get inquiries."

Mayor Scurrell in his inaugural address this year recommended an effort to draw secondary industry to the city.

Now, he said after yesterday's meeting, he is looking for a key man for a committee of able volunteers to use the results of the survey when it is complete.

Friday Meters Stalled

Proposal to have parking meters in operation for Friday evening shopping didn't get far yesterday in city council.

It was kicked back to public works committee for further study, and public works committee seemed inclined to kill it.

City engineer James Garnett had been asked by public works committee to report to council on the advisability of having the parking meters in operation Friday evenings. "I'm definitely against it myself," said Mayor Scurrell. "I think it would be a great mistake."

PERSONAL MENTION

The Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. F. M. Ross will attend the opening ceremonies of Minor Hockey Night at the Victoria Memorial Arena, Monday, Feb. 1, and will be accompanied by Brig. J. Adam and Miss Ruth MacLean.

Tuesday, Feb. 2, the second State Dinner will be held at Government House.

Mrs. Ross will entertain the wives of the Members of the Executive Council of B.C. at lunch at Government House, Saturday, Feb. 6.

Members of the Canadian Women's Press Club, Vancouver Island Branch, will have tea with Mrs. Ross at Government House, Sunday, Feb. 7.

Off to Hawaii

Miss Jean Reason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Reason, 1227 Judge Place, accompanied by Miss Barbara Richardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Forrest, 1215 Hillside Avenue, left Victoria by plane yesterday for two weeks vacation in Hawaii. While there they will be guests at the Royal Grove Hotel.

A tea party was held at the home of Mrs. C. Connorton and Miss Molly Powers at Langford Lake, recently. Guests include Miss L. M. A. Severy, Mrs. G. MacGregor, Mrs. L. Horner, Mrs. A. Ashdown, Mrs. H. W. McKenzie, Mrs. W. Sims, Mrs. C. Stone, Mrs. R. Guyton and Mrs. A. F. Bayles.

Symphony Reception

Affair will be held in Oak Bay Beach Hotel after the concert. Invited guests are members of the women's committee, their husbands and members of the symphony board. Presiding at the head table will be Mrs. J. F. English and Mrs. J. Barraclough.

Tips for Parents

Issues Involved Most Important

By HELEN R. HEWSON

How does a child become honest? How does he learn to know and accept truth?

Thousands of parents have viewed those excellent films, the Ages and Stages series, and there is one sequence in the "Social Six to Noisy Nine" film that always provokes lively and heated discussion.

Pete, the seven-year-old, is hurt and angry when brother Sandy goes off without him. He wanders into the kitchen, pokes around for a few minutes, then helps himself to some of the milk money and goes off to buy comic books.

In every audience parents pop up to declare vehemently that mother was too lenient with Pete. She let him off too easily. He should have been "taught a good lesson."

The commentary explains that his mother handled this situation in a way that she believed will help Pete to sort out right from wrong. Many parents are concerned only with Pete's act and punishment, not ways and means of preventing a recurrence. Corrective measures will only be effective if they strengthen the boy's own sense of responsibility for his own behavior.

Standards of right and wrong are not yet clear to the six- and seven-year-old. Wrong doing is often the result of strong and immediate feelings, as in Pete's case. Judgment, an assessment of consequences inner controls, are weak in the young child.

Harsh treatment assumes that he should have these qualities and capacities but has failed to use them. It only bewilders him and turns his attention to avoiding the hurt rather than avoiding the deed in the future.

He becomes adept at covering up. We must all learn to be honest and dependable if we are to enjoy the trust and friendship of others.

Decisions that are based on issues involved, rather than feelings, are the mark of maturity.

What's Cooking!

Finnan Haddie Makes Delicious Casserole

By LOUISE MOORE

Many an old has been rates pretty high, but all too seldom do we take the trouble to serve them. So here are a few old timers to grace the family board, especially during the winter months.

CASSEROLE OF FINNAN HADDIE

If the fish is too salty or smoky, cover with cold water, bring to a simmer and simmer about 5 minutes. Then drain and rinse off with warm water. Put into a greased casserole or baking dish, adding a cupful of warm milk and 2 tbsp. butter for 2 pounds of fish.

Bake in a slow oven until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. One pound of smoked fish will serve three nicely. By simmering the fish slowly you will avoid curdling of the milk.

Baked potatoes, scalloped tomatoes, a cabbage slaw and a lemon pudding or sherbet or some such tart refreshing dessert goes well with the smoked fish dinner.

PIEAPPLE SPARE RIBS

Wipe 3 pounds nice meaty spareribs with a damp cloth. Melt 2 tbsp. fat in skillet and brown the ribs well. They should be cut in serving portions first. When well browned sprinkle with salt and pepper. Drain a can of pineapple spears (about 14-ounce can or thereabouts will do). Arrange ribs in layers in greased baking dish, alternating with the pineapple spears. Or if you have the sliced pineapple cut them in quarters and arrange them in the dish. Pour the syrup from the canned pineapple over top. Cover and bake in mod. oven (325) for 1½ hours or until ribs are tender.

If gravy is desired, remove ribs and pineapple to heated dish and measure liquid in pan. For each cup of the liquid or gravy, blend ¼ tbsp. flour with ¼ cup cold water. Then pour this slowly into the hot liquid stirring constantly until mixture boils and is thick.

Serve with mashed potatoes and buttered broccoli, celery hearts and a good old apple pie.

Plug-In Flashlight Makes Future Brighter

Eggs for breakfast sitting in an egg cup with a painted face and wearing a knitted wool cap, would make a cheerful start to the day for children or adults.

Rows of these funny faced egg cups sitting in one store are selling for 49 cents, reduced during a sale. Usual price is 69 cents.

In the same store other good household buys are pint sized thermoses at 99 cents. Every family needs at least one of these for unexpected picnics or long car journeys at any time of year.

Midwife Awaits Royal Call

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth doesn't mind whether her new baby is a prince or a princess.

Sister Helen Rowe, the little white-haired nurse who will assist at the birth, said today that the Queen told her as much in a recent letter.

And Sister Rowe, who has delivered hundreds of babies, said she would treat the royal birth the same as any of the others.

The Queen's third child is due any time now and today Sister Rowe is "awaiting a phone call to command my attendance at Buckingham Palace."

Lunch buckets are reduced to $1.59.

Pyrex measuring jugs, useful in all kitchens, are selling for 39 cents and 59 cents according to size. Teapots at 99 cents and an aluminium coffee percolator at $1.99 are other good cheap necessities. Heavy based glass tumblers can be bought for 29 cents each while stocks last.

To soften the lot of the laundress of the household a foam ironing board will help cushion some of that drudgery. This is reduced to $1.59.

Several bargains in electrical appliances are still to be found while sales last. A double buy of an electric dutch oven with a removable rack inside, a large electric frying pan, and a temperature control to be used with both of them are selling for $29.50 the set.

An electric mixer with two bowls and a stand are only $29.88 for the time being.

However conscientious you are as a cook it is impossible not to use a can opener frequently. To last a life time which has a stand or can be fixed to a wall. This neat little contraption costs just $21.95. Nobody will need to curse and swear when their torch gives off a miserable little glimmer, because they forget to buy a new battery for it. A flashlight without one is on the market. At $3.95 you can now buy a torch which can be plugged into any electric socket, left overnight, and then is completely re-charged.

Fun for children who like to cook and useful to make a hasty meal is the new Dog O-Matic. This electrical appliance cooks six hot dogs in 90 seconds, and saves heating up the oven or a hot plate.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 24, a green-eyed red head, well proportioned and very mixed up.

Six months ago, I fell in love with an ad executive. He was strangely evasive about where he lived but I never thought much about it. Yesterday he phoned to say he had a bad case of flu and could not make our date. I decided to surprise him with some hot chicken soup. I got his address from his boss.

Rick was sick all right, and he became a lot sicker when he saw me at his door. At first he said he was too ill to let me in, but I insisted. The first thing I noticed was a frilly robe on the back of a chair, then some satin bedroom slippers plus a woman's handbag and gloves. I asked for an explanation.

He told me a young girl he'd known in Peoria was out of work and friendless. She couldn't pay her rent so he let her move in for a few weeks. He swore there was nothing between them and begged me to have faith in him. Would you?—RED.

Dear Red: Would I what? Believe he's playing house mother to a friendless girl from Peoria? No.

If your boy friend wanted to be a junior-grade philanthropist he could have advanced the girl some rent money—or asked a woman friend to take her in for a few weeks. Tell him to run it down the flagpole. Nobody in his right mind would salute it.

You Were Right

Dear Ann: You helped me several months ago so I'm turning to you again. I'm so happy I followed your advice because now I realize how right you were.

I'm the girl with the withered left arm who wanted to wear my engagement ring on my crippled hand. You advised me to wear the ring on the other hand. You even explained why I wanted to wear the ring on my left hand. And you were right. I was subconsciously flaunting my deformity to show people I could get a wonderful fellow in spite of my handicap.

Now I'm making plans for the wedding. I've always wanted to wear a bridal gown, but perhaps I shouldn't because of my arm. Do you think if I carried a large bouquet it would help? Please tell me what to do. I was wrong before and I may be wrong again.—S.C.

Dear S.C.: By all means wear a bridal gown and carry a large bouquet. And my heartiest congratulations!

She Isn't Fair

Dear Ann: My husband and I moved into his mother's home when we married nine years ago. His mother has been employed all this time. We paid rent and took care of the utility bills.

Now his mother is retiring from her job and wants to sell us her home. She thinks she should live with us for nothing. She'll be getting a pension so it's not as if she will be penniless.

My husband feels this is perfectly all right. I say it isn't fair. She has three daughters besides this son.—DISGUSTED.

Dear Disgusted: Your signature tells me more than your letter. More important than whether or not your mother-in-law should pay is the fact that you have a poor relationship with her and therefore you shouldn't live together under any conditions.

It would be far better if your mother-in-law could get an apartment alone. I recommend this even if it means all four children must pitch in to supplement the pension.

Fraser on regional conference in Victoria in March; Mrs. R. G. Hobson, federation; Mrs. A. J. Tullis, B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Society; Mrs. W. A. Porter, reorganization of French conversation group under Mrs. Oldham; Mrs. T. G. Hatcher, annual scholarship tea in Oak Bay Beach Hotel on Feb. 27.

Mrs. D. Elford was named convener of arrangements for billeting university students visiting Victoria on Feb. 26 from International House at University of British Columbia.

Cat Family Takes Over From High-Cost Mink

PARIS (Reuters)—Youthful and inexpensive furs are getting priority rating in the Paris fashion scene.

Couturiers and leading fur salons suddenly have awakened to the fact that most women cannot afford mink.

French rabbit emerges from its humble role as a lining. It has been dyed every shade of the rainbow from red, white, or blue to brilliant jonquil yellow.

Rabbits are followed in the fashion scene by the entire cat family. From the lowly "alley" species to cheetah, tiger, jaguar and snow leopard. Pierre Balmain uses Chinese panther and leopard skin freely for trimming.

Pattern Set

Liberalized Education Creates New Problems

LONDON—Boy or girl—the pattern is set for the education of the Queen's next child.

A generation ago the child would have spent the formative years cloistered with tutors in the hothouse atmosphere of court protocol.

Today it is a virtual certainty he or she will have to face the hard knocks of an English private school.

And Royal children of the next generation may go to an ordinary state school.

The new pattern has been set by the Queen's sportsman-husband, who is all for bringing up his children to confirm as nearly as possible to the pattern of ordinary people.

The new prince or princess will start lessons earlier in life than most children—as the Queen believes a lot of extra "homework" is necessary for members of the Royal Family. By the time the child is 3½ or 4 lessons from the royal tutor, Miss Catherine Peebles will have started.

As the child will be much younger than Brother Charles and Sister Anne, the Queen will likely invite two or three special playmates to the palace to join in lessons.

If the baby is a boy, he will soon leave his tutor for the select Knightsbridge day kindergarten school which Charles attended.

He will then go to Cheam, a small private school near Windsor which Charles now attends.

When he leaves Cheam at 12 or 13 the big controversy will be: Eton or Gordonstoun? The Duke of Edinburgh went to Gordonstoun—an austere establishment run on Spartan lines by a German headmaster—and is reportedly in favor of sending Charles, and any future male children there.

But the English upper crust favors Eton—sprouting ground of many of England's most famous men.

If the new baby is a girl, she will lead a more sheltered life, but still one which would have shocked stern Queen Victoria.

Following in Anne's footsteps, the girl will take lessons from her tutor until she is 10 or 11, then will likely join her sister at select Heathfield private girls' school in Berkshire.

Anne, 9 last August, is scheduled to go to Heathfield in 1961.

In breaking away from time-honored customs, the Queen and Duke are moving toward the methods of the Swedish royal family, who send their children to state schools.

The liberalizing of their education presents all sorts of unusual problems for the children.

For instance, Prince Charles during prayers at school for the Royal Family was heard to say: "I do wish they'd pray for the other chap's mothers and fathers sometimes."

Miss Valentine Honored Before Going to Quebec

PARKSVILLE—Miss Evelyn Valentine recently resigned from the traffic staff of the B.C. Telephone Company at Parksville to join the Royal Canadian Airforce and has left here for St. Johns, Quebec, where she will take her basic training.

Prior to her departure Miss Valentine was honored by her former co-workers at the telephone office at a surprise farewell party in the operator's lounge.

The refreshment table and room decorations were in an Air Force motif cleverly designed by Mrs. Ena McGibbon assisted by Mrs. Winnifred Higgins. Conveners for the event were Miss Aldene Clark, Miss Betty Smithers and Miss Mamie Ann Murrant.

On behalf of the operating staff and plant department Miss Mary C. Enos, chief operator, presented the guest of honor with an engraved pen and pencil set as a farewell gift.

Spray Peaches Now

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

One job which shouldn't be delayed any longer is the spraying of the peach tree against the leaf-curl disease. I am certainly no spray enthusiast, for I detest the job of mixing and applying the evil-smelling mixtures recommended for the health of our trees, but no matter how much I may skip on the spray schedule for the rest of the garden, the leaf-curl spray for peaches is an absolute must.

This disease is so common and widespread, it is virtually impossible to maintain a peach tree in health unless this key spraying is applied. Like the botrytis disease of peonies, which causes the peony buds to dry up and fall off, the peach tree must "catch" the disease afresh every spring from fungus spores which spend the winter on the bud scales. If you can kill these spores when the buds are swelling but before they open, you're home free, and your tree will come through the summer without the leaves becoming thickened, distorted and blistered.

You need a sunny day for the job, preferably without too much wind. And as we don't get many such days at this time of the year, you'd better have all the spray materials on hand and all ready, so you can jump in and take advantage of any breaks in the weather.

Lime-sulphur is a reliable and inexpensive spray which does a satisfactory job against the leaf-curl infection, and the dry powder is mixed at the rate of 10 heaping tablespoons per gallon of water. If you buy your lime-sulphur in liquid form, mix it according to the directions on the package. I can't give you the formula, as the strength of the concentrate varies from one brand to another.

I should warn you, though, that lime-sulphur will discolor painted surfaces, and if your tree is trained against the house wall, you'll have to spread newspapers behind the tree to protect the paint, or switch to a non-staining spray.

Any spray containing copper will do a good job against leaf-curl, and these too are inexpensive and readily available. Niagara Brand Bordo Mixture is a good one, mixed at the rate of 15 level tablespoons per gallon of water. CIL Tri-Cop is familiar but a bit stronger, and is applied at the rate of five level tablespoons per gallon. If you have any spray on hand recommended for the control of potato blight, this will be quite satisfactory on the peach tree. These copper-based sprays may cause some temporary staining of the paintwork, but, unlike the lime-sulphur stains, it will wash off.

Still another spray which is effective against leaf-curl is Later's Garden Fungicide, and this one is completely non-staining. While it is more expensive, you need less of it, and three tablespoons per gallon of water is enough to do the job.

The efficiency of any of these sprays is vastly increased by adding a "wetting agent" which causes the material to spread evenly over the bark and buds, and makes it more penetrating and sticking. CIL Stick-Spreader or Later's Surfactant are both good, used at the rate of 1/4 teaspoonful per gallon of spray.

Chances are you won't get that calm, windless day ideal for spraying, and you'll have to get on with the job regardless of wind. If you spray against the wind most of the stuff will blow back in your face, which is unpleasant, to say the least. If you apply the spray down wind, it will pass through the branches too fast to be effective.

The trick here is to stand to one side and spray across the wind—on the windward side of the tree, of course—allowing the breeze to drift the cloud of spray into the heart of the tree. You must do a thorough job, making sure every last twig is covered, for just one tiny unsprayed bit could re-infect the whole tree.

The Viewing World

'Reading Aloud' Credit to TV

By John Crosby

The fire-station Westinghouse Broadcasting Co., which is unabashedly full of public spirit, has inaugurated a half-hour program "Reading Out Loud" of such simplicity that its like hasn't been seen on television since TV's youth. A bunch of kids are assembled—anybody's kids—and they are read to by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Julie Harris, Jose Ferrer, Richard Nixon, and people like that.

This was the brainchild of Mike Santangelo, Westinghouse's able young public relations man, who thought that since television generally gets blamed for the decline in reading, it ought to do something about reviving it.

"We have only two things on this show: The guy reading the story and the reaction of the kids listening to it. There is a paucity of reading due to television but every time anyone talks about books on the air—Jack Paar, Steve Allen—book sales go 'way up."

"Westinghouse produces the show on tape, pays for it, gives it to educational stations or offers it free to anyone who will put it on in prime evening time without commercials."

We repaired to the control room to watch Julie Harris read. "You know," mused Mr. Santangelo, "if every television station produced one good show a year and then exchanged it with the others, words like paucity wouldn't exist in this medium."

Kids were straggling into the studio below and arranging themselves in chairs in the interesting attitudes of children. "We try to do the shows so the kids aren't bored," said Santangelo. "There's no rehearsal and the spontaneity pays off."

Just then one of the kids lost a tooth. Miss Harris removed it and the show started.

Miss Harris read from Kenneth Grahame's "Wind in the Willows." One little girl kept sticking out her tongue. Another one frowned in concentration. Whenever the camera came up on a little boy or girl who would smile or laugh, director Lou Freedman would say: "Thank you for smiling!"

The only commercial was for reading itself: Miss Harris urging the parents to try this themselves. The looks and expressions on the kids' faces will warm the cockles of your heart even if you don't like someone to read aloud to you.

Hollywood Today

Riches of 'River Kwai'

By Sheilah Graham

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Producer Sam Spiegel says "God bless 'Bridge on the River Kwai' every night in his prayers. From his share of the profits, Sam has put together the most expensive apartment in America, maybe the world. It's a penthouse on Park Avenue, New York. For alterations to the rooms, Sam spent $280,000. His CinemaScope projection room in the apartment cost $100,000. To date the place has set his bank balance back $750,000. And it isn't finished."

And do you want to know why Spiegel filmed the cannibalistic "Suddenly Last Summer"? Not because of Elizabeth Taylor. And definitely not for Montgomery Clift. Expecting to lose $2,000,000 on the gruesome Tennessee Williams story, Spiegel went ahead with it, because he admires Katharine Hepburn very much, and believes her role in the picture will win her an Oscar nomination. Because of its gruesome publicity, the movie is now expected to gross $10,000,000.

Stella Stevens, the luscious blonde in "Lil Abner," gets the top roles in "The Slender Thread" and "Melody of Sex."

I have just finished reading Errol Flynn's story of his life, "My Wicked, Wicked Ways." Strange how this man, who never stopped pursuing women, hated them. I always suspected it. His book is confirmation of his awful attitude toward women. Errol doesn't spare himself, and what emerges is a frightened, bitter, courageous, and quite unpleasant person.

Merle Oberon and husband Bruno Paglia gave a party for friends to see her in her old movie, "Wuthering Heights" in which she was so lovely, with Laurence Olivier. Merle is happy in this marriage. She has everything—four homes (two in Mexico, two in southern California) lots of other real estate, diamonds, rubies, emeralds and paintings. And, to top it all, Merle and Bruno recently adopted a baby.

Joseph Cotten, crushed by the death of his Lenore, is selling his two homes, one in California and one in New York. He finished "Temptation" with Ava Gardner and Dirk Bogarde in Italy. Next stop, an apartment in New York—and probably a play.

Groucho and Me

Not Only Saloons But Pool Halls Made Us Welcome

By GROUCHO MARX

Don't get the idea that the saloons were the only places in town where we had social entertainment. We were also cordially received in the pool halls. For an actor-on-the-road, these distinguished ateliers were more inviting than the average dump he lived in.

And besides, if he was handy with a cue, there was always the likelihood of picking up a few bucks. We used to pick up quite a bit of change backslapping Chico against the local pool sharks.

The Pantages Circuit was composed of a string of semi-medieval theatres stretching from Chicago to the Coast and back again. We were on our way from Duluth to Calgary and had a three-hour layover in Winnipeg. We stashed our hand luggage in the depot and all the boys, except me, automatically headed for the nearest poolroom. In recent weeks I hadn't been too hot with the cue, and I decided that I needed a brief sabbatical from the green-cloth. I walked up Main Street. A half block away from a frowsy-looking theatre I heard roars of laughter. I decided I had better go in and see who could possibly be that funny. On the stage were eight or 10 assorted characters in an act called "A Night at the Club." One of these actors wore a very small mustache and very large shoes, and while a big, buxom soprano was singing Schubert lieder, he was alternately spitting a fountain of dry cracker crumbs in the air and beaming her with overripe oranges. By the end of the act the stage was a shambles.

Leaving the theatre, I went back to the depot to meet my brothers. I told them I had just seen a great comic. I described him—a slight man with a tiny mustache, a cane, a derby and a large pair of shoes. I then penguin-walked around the depot, imitating him as best I could. By the time I finished raving about his antics my brothers could hardly wait to see him.

The Sullivan-Conside Circuit ran parallel to the Coast, and we finally caught up with him in Vancouver. I had talked him up so much that my brothers were all a little skeptical. Then he appeared, and in less than five minutes they were willing to concede that he was everything I said, and more.

After the show we went backstage and introduced ourselves. We found him in a dingy dressing room which he was sharing with three other eccentric comics. After the preliminary introductions, we told him how wonderful he was. During the ensuing conversation he told us he was getting $50 a week and, although he had been promised a raise to $60, it had never come through.

He had already created considerable excitement in the movie industry. In fact, he told us that some movie mogul had offered him $500 a week to work for him. We congratulated him. "When do you start?" I asked.

"I'm not going to take it," he answered.

"Why not?" I asked, astonished. "You're only getting fifty a week now. Don't you like money?"

"Of course I do," he replied. (and, boy, did he prove this later). "But look, boys, I can make good for $50 a week, but no comedian is worth $500 a week. If I sign up with them and don't make good, they'll fire me. Then where will I be? I'll tell you where I'll be. Flat on my back!"

He was a strange little man—this Charlie Chaplin. He's still the greatest comic figure that the movies, or any other medium, ever spawned.

'Hex Atom Tests' Juju Doctors Told

KABBA, Nigeria (UPI) — The king of Ayere has called on all Nigeria's juju doctors to put a hex on the proposed French atomic bomb tests in the Sahara Desert.

Oba (king) Olumodeji did not say how it could be done. But he appealed to native doctors throughout the country to "find a means to halt" the tests.

Chronic Care Hospitals

'Gorge' Among First In New B.C. Plan

By ALEC MERRIMAN
Victoria's Gorge Hospital will probably be among the first to participate in the new chronic care hospital scheme which the government proposes to bring in at the current session of the legislature.

It is expected the plan will start April 1 and that hospitals will take part in the plan as they provide approved chronic care facilities.

BASIC DETAILS
Since Health Minister Martin first announced basic details of the program, Gorge Road Hospital has extended its facilities for chronic care. Most of the gaps in the present hospital insurance program will be filled at this session.

CHRONIC WING
First move to get under the chronic hospital care plan will have to come from the communities that want to get in on it. Implementation of the scheme should mean about 1,500 chronic hospital beds for B.C. Medical experts believe best solution for communities is to add a chronic wing to existing acute hospitals.

The type of patients who would be eligible would be convalescent patients who no longer require the intensive diagnostic and treatment services of an active treatment general hospital, and who are certified as so likely to benefit from rehabilitation treatment services that they may be returned to their homes.

At the start of the scheme it is likely that BCHIS will automatically pick up a patient's bills for three months.

Relief Ship Blocked

Antarctic Scientists Stranded Extra Year

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Twenty-four scientists, including an unidentified North American will be stranded for a full year at the Argentine-operated Lincoln Ellsworth base in Antarctica because a relief ship has been unable to reach them, it was learned last night.

Scientists manning Argentina's Belgrano base also will be cut off for a year, but their condition is expected to be much more comfortable since the station is considerably larger and better equipped than Ellsworth.

In both cases, food and other supplies are sufficient to last the exploration teams until the spring thaws of 1961.

An Argentine icebreaker has given up on its relief mission because of unusually heavy ice.

It was 170 miles from Ellsworth when it had to turn back. No other attempts to reach the station are possible this year.

Ellsworth was built by the U.S. in 1957 for the International Geophysical Year and was later turned over to Argentina.

Winds, Tides High

High winds last night sliced power and telephone lines in the torrent-drenched area between the Malahat and Nanaimo, adding to the woes of hundreds of residents battling floods and watching for landslides.

There was no consolation from the weather office, which forecast more winds and rain for today.

Damage from flooding was estimated in the "thousands of dollars" in Cowichan and Nanaimo.

Tons of Rock

Hillside and lowland areas in the Cowichan district were hit hardest yesterday as heavy rains "loosened" tons of rock and mud in slides and ram-paging Koksilah and Cowichan Rivers rose six feet, forcing at least half a dozen homes to be abandoned.

Sections of Nanaimo were flooded as the Chase River overflowed its banks.

A record three inches of rain fell on Duncan overnight Thursday and as much was expected again last night. Near-record rainfalls were reported in Nanaimo and Parksville. A number of slides cut off roads, and other routes were reported under water varying from a few inches to five feet on one section of the Cowichan Bay Road.

Close Watch

Half a dozen bridges in the Cowichan district were being watched closely as water roared by only inches beneath the deck of the spans.

A disastrous combination of the heavy rains and an unusually high tide shoved by a strong east wind, swamped the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway track at Koksilah with 17 inches of water, peaking at 5:45 p.m., forcing a freight train to stop and disrupting the passenger service.

A southbound one-car passenger train was held at Duncan and passengers transferred to a Vancouver Island Coach Lines bus early last night to continue to Victoria.

Deep Water

Earlier in the day, a Coach Lines dispatcher said one of the bus drivers found the water so deep on Cowichan Bay Road that he emptied the luggage well and put suitcases and parcels in the passenger compartment to keep them dry.

Winds estimated at more than 45 miles an hour blew up at 5 p.m. to add to the havoc. Guests knocked over a dozen trees, which sliced power and telephone lines, cutting off communications and throwing the valley into darkness.

Lights Out

Lights were out for almost two hours before B.C. Hydro crews, working on high-tension lines despite the high winds, restored power.

Rain-Fed Flood Cascades Over Highway

Victoria Faces Still More Rain

A warning that more rain is in store for lower Vancouver Island today was issued by weatherman William Mackie last night in the wake of reports of flooded basements and roads.

"There is definite indication that another period of rain equal to the one we just went through is in store today," he said, "although they don't usually occur two days in a row."

Rain should start early this morning and be over by the afternoon, he said.

Damage from yesterday's rain was comparatively light in Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt. Only a few reports of minor flooding in basements were received.

River Rises Seven Feet At Montreal

MONTREAL (UPI) — The St. Lawrence River rose seven feet in less than an hour early yesterday and flooded an eight-block area of the Montreal waterfront.

Harbor officials said there was a danger of further flooding by water backed up by huge ice jams.

Tough revolt leader Pierre Lagardie heads for a meeting with Jacques Ortiz.

51 Survive Emergency Landing

PORT HARDY (CP) — Forty-eight passengers and a crew of three on a Pacific Western Airlines C-46 plane escaped injury late Friday when the plane skidded on a wet runway here in an emergency landing.

The plane, on a flight from Port Hardy to Vancouver, had turned back when trouble developed in one engine. The plane landed on the other.

The aircraft slid off the end of the runway into a cleared patch and was extensively damaged.

'Hang de Gaulle' Algiers War Cry

ALGIER, Algeria (UPI) — Rebellious European settlers entrenched behind cement-reinforced barricades roared "de Gaulle to the gallows" last night in answer to President Charles de Gaulle's challenge from Paris.

De Gaulle gave his command Friday night to the soldiers of France: restore order in Algeria. He said the right-wing insurrectionists there are guilty men who dream of usurping power and speak the words of liars and conspirators.

The voice of the French president had hardly died away when the insurgents, clustered around radios in open streets, oblivious to a pouring rain, raised their defiant war cry.

"Well, you have heard what de Gaulle has to say," shouted their black-haired leader, Jacques Ortiz. "You heard him! For the moment let's keep calm, because those who are calm are strong."

"Tomorrow we shall take the decisions you are waiting for."

The men behind the barricades with him heard in de Gaulle's speech not the slightest concession to their demands. His insistence on going through with "self-determination" for Algerians rubbed salt in their wounds.

Now, for either side, there was no easy way out.

Earlier in the day the insurgents' hopes of winning the loyalty of the French Army in Algeria sagged with declarations by two key French generals that they supported de Gaulle.

Behind the Teenage Curtain

Sharp, Hard-Hitting Provincial Action Needed

This is the sixth of a series of articles on the mounting problem of juvenile delinquency in Greater Victoria.

The cure for the mounting problem of juvenile delinquency calls for sharp, hard-hitting and co-ordinated action by the provincial government, welfare agencies, civic officials, police, and all community residents. The Colonist has discussed the problems with numerous officials interested in juvenile behavior and has come up with a plan and a number of suggestions that could be the answer.

Emphasis has been placed on the preventive side of juvenile delinquency, coupled with a more realistic system for handling offenders once they get into trouble. There is now a pitiful lack of co-operation among social workers, probation officers, schools, police, magistrates, children's aid groups, churches, recreation groups, service clubs and many other groups and individuals who go merrily on their own way to help the children. Most of them do a good job, but they would do a much better job if everybody worked in the same direction. First and immediate need would seem to be a special provincial department, a youth authority, to co-ordinate all activities in connection with juveniles including closer liaison between probation officers of the attorney-general's department, and social workers of the welfare department which runs juvenile correctional institutions and administers foster home care. This department could come under jurisdiction of a special B.C. committee, organized to deal with children and youth problems, and on this committee should be representatives of the attorney-general's department, welfare department, health and mental health departments, child guidance

Thetis Ruling Put Off—'Up for Auction' Says McEwen

A decision on the proposed Thetis Lake power-line easement was postponed yesterday in city council. The B.C. Electric asked if it would delay it a couple of weeks.

Mayor Percy Scutrah said. But before council turned to other things: Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said he understood the Vic-Van Isle Kinsmen Club was considering devoting boat show profits to Thetis Lake Park development, to compensate for revenue lost if the easement isn't granted. Ald. Elmer McEwen questioned whether it was fair to ask conservationists and others to put up the equivalent of the easement revenue for park development. "If different groups raise $5,000, and then the B.C. Electric says $10,000, they're going to say $15,000, and the B.C. Electric $20,000—it's been put on the auction block now, hasn't it?" Mayor Percy Scutrah said no, a deal was a deal. Prof. Lewis Clark, vice-president of the Thetis Lake Nature Sanctuary Association, and P. M. Monckton of the Victoria Natural History Society, addressed council, opposing granting of the easement. Council referred to its water works committee, without hearing them, 14 letters opposing the easement.

To City Hall

Royal Head Moved

A bust of Queen Elizabeth commemorating last year's royal visit may not be placed in Beacon Hill Park after all, but at least it's going, temporarily, to a better place than the Garbally public works yard.

City council decided yesterday to have the bust—the work of sculptor Peggy Walton Packard—moved for the time being to City Hall, while a committee tries to decide whether it should go to the park, the art gallery, or where.

VANDALISM
Original plan was to place it in the park, near the Burns monument.

But Ald. Austin Curtis said there was so much vandalism in the park he wondered how long it would last there.

Ald. Elmer McEwen suggested the art gallery, and won some support.

"TOO CLOSE"

"I would think our lobby would be too close to home," said Ald. Hugh Ramsay, referring to the fact that Saanich and Oak Bay are helping to pay for it.

But Ald. Curtis didn't want the bust left at Garbally yard any longer, and council agreed it should be moved to City Hall pending a decision.

Injured Boy 'Satisfactory'

Jeffrey Stock, 10, of 2608 Douglas, who suffered head injuries when struck by a car at Douglas and Kings Road at 5:25 p.m. yesterday, was later reported in satisfactory condition at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Swindler At Work

Ex-MLA Lydia Arsens last night told police she had given $6 to a confidence man at her View Street shop.

Before the man came in she got a phone call asking her to tell him his child had been burned, and he was to get $5 worth of medicine at a drugstore. She gave him the money.

It was the second such swindle here in 24 hours.

Charity Survey

Feb. 15-20

A mail survey to find out how Victoria residents feel about supporting a United Appeal charitable campaign rather than the many now being held will be conducted Feb. 15 to 20.

Special committee of the Community Chest yesterday voted to make the survey, asking whether Victorians would like to see an amalgamation of Chest agencies with the six largest national health organizations, which now conduct their own appeals.

These would include Canadian Red Cross, Salvation Army, Multiple Sclerosis Association, Cerebral Palsy Association, Canadian Heart Fund, and the B.C. Cancer Foundation.

When mothers of Greater Victoria start marching from door to door at 7 p.m. today, the help you give may bring about a happy ending for another child as it already has for four-year-old Joann Jensen.

Joann was stricken with polio last October. It affected her left leg. She never had to be put in an iron lung, of course, but there was that frightening possibility of lasting lameness.

BRIGHT-EYED

Bright-eyed, merry little Joann responded to treatment and therapy.

Just before Christmas she left the hospital for home and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pieter Jensen, 530 Hillside, and her three sisters and brother.

The therapy continued. She could only be on her feet for an hour a day when she came home. Now she can hardly be singled out in the household of active youngsters.

EXERCISE GOOD

Today there's only one muscle still weak. It runs down her left foot to her big toe. Joann can't stand alone on her toes yet, but the exercises she does every day are proving good.

Doctors tell Mrs. Jensen that when Joann starts kindergarten in September she should be completely well again.

Her therapy, plus the medical and hospital care, were taken over by the B.C. Foundation for Child Care, Polio-myelitis and Rehabilitation—and that's what the Marching Mothers are supporting tonight.

FULL HEALTH

Care like that bringing Joann back to full health is not the only concern of the Foundation.

The Foundation also sponsors neurological research;

supports a chair of education at UBC for training of teachers for handicapped children; conducts a speech and hearing program in a clinic for handicapped youngsters on Gorge Road; recently purchased an 18-acre estate for the Family and Children's Service to be used for emotionally disturbed boys.

This is the work the Foundation does.

Mickelson Elected President

Ray Buckett was elected first vice-president and Ralph Fell, second vice-president. Nigel Turner is the new treasurer and Mrs. Vivian Carbery, secretary.

Drive Spans Ocean

A telephone conversation between Junior Chamber of Commerce presidents in Victoria and Hong Kong last night completed arrangements for Victoria Jaycees' clothing drive.

Peter Forward, president of Victoria Jaycees, phoned John McKenzie, president of the Hong Kong chapter which will receive and distribute clothing collected in the Victoria drive. "We were assured of their complete co-operation," Mr. Forward said. "So people contributing clothing will know that it is going straight to those who really need it, and not through the black market that flourishes there."

Objective of the drive is three tons of clothing. Contributions may be taken to the Mason Street entrance of First Baptist Church, corner of Mason and Quadra Streets. Members of the Jaycees are repairing some of the clothing.

Cadets Parade Tomorrow

Rear-Admiral H. S. Rayner, flag officer Pacific Coast, will inspect a wing parade of officer cadets of the Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, Sunday commencing at 10 a.m.

A total of 165 cadets of the senior and junior classes will take part in the parade and church service which follows. Music will be provided by the naval band of HMCS Naden.

Broadcast Board Breaks Monopoly in Vancouver

Viewers in the Greater Victoria area and up-Island can look forward to generally improved television reception as the result of two decisions announced yesterday by the Board of Broadcast Governors.

The board approved a competitive TV station for Vancouver—thus breaking the monopoly held by the CBC in metropolitan areas—and an increase to maximum power for CHEK-TV, Victoria.

The power boost for the local station is expected to become effective in early July, when it is hoped the new transmitter will begin operating from Saturna Island.

Its effect will be a strong signal on Channel 6 beaming into up-Island communities as far north as Campbell River and covering the lower mainland and Fraser Valley areas as well as reaching the Seattle-Tacoma area for the first time.

Local viewers are expected to get better reception on Channel 6 when CHEK-TV's transmitter is moved to the new location, and according to a company spokesman, there will be decreased interference on Channel 5.

"Excellent reception" from the new Vancouver station, scheduled to begin operating on Channel 8 sometime this fall, was forecast by a Victoria businessman who assisted in preparation of the successful Van-Tel submission to the BBG.

Charles R. White of Sidney, former operating manager of CHEK-TV here, now associated with the new Vancouver station, said many parts of Greater Victoria will get a good, clear picture on Channel 8 with rabbit ears. He said local reception was covered in the group's submission to the BBG.

Another Victoria businessman associated with the new station, is J. Denis Hagar of Hagar Investments.

Mr. Hagar said the BBG decision will "open up a whole new era" in television in his province. He said the Van-Tel submission laid great emphasis on development of local talent and pledged the new station to predominant use of Canadian shows.

D. M. Armstrong, president of CHEK-TV, said the power boost will permit extended coverage by the local station to east coast communities on Upper Vancouver Island.

"It will also enable us for the first time to reach the Seattle-Tacoma area and tell the residents of the Pacific Northwest of the beauties not only of Victoria but the whole of Vancouver Island."

He added the new transmitter when its power is boosted from 1.8 Kw (video) to 100 Kw, and from .9 Kw (audio) to 50 Kw, will reach as far as Hope on the mainland. Completion date of the new transmitter depends on delivery of equipment.

The BBG also granted a second TV licence for Winnipeg. The successful applicant was Ralph S. Misener and Associates.

Formal ratification of the new licences must come from the cabinet in Ottawa.

Mr. Smith, who moved the reply to the Throne Speech, also asked that the federal government be pressed by the legislature to keep its promise to build a new terminal building and extend the runways at the Patricia Bay Airport.

He congratulated the Victoria University Council, the Victoria Chamber of Commerce and others, and also praised the strong backing from local newspapers, especially The Daily Colonist, for being "so persistent about having our Victoria College take on the status of a university."

He was enthusiastic about the new government ferries which will go on the run between Tsawwassen and Swartz Bay. "Business people and residents of the area will experience a new prosperity which they never had before," he said.

He said the two ferries now being built "will be the most modern afloat on the Pacific Coast" and described the service as "another feather in the cap of the Social Credit administration."

He said the government was pleased that Royal Jubilee Hospital is going ahead with a $3,000,000 construction program and St. Joseph's Hospital with a $2,000,000 building project.

Mr. Smith claimed the most important and beneficial events to the people of B.C. since Confederation took place in the last decade under the Secord regime.

"Liquidation of our direct debt was without a doubt the big accomplishment of the 50s," he said. "... we are now entering the grand and glorious 60s."

Whether or not the trans-continental railways will stay in the passenger business over the years ahead, Mr. Gordon said, is the $64 question, "but we are making a very strenuous effort to devise incentives to the public to travel by rail in larger numbers."

The company's efforts are directed in negotiations now to modernizing these rules and practices, he said.

"We have every hope of working it out patiently and gradually so the employees will see for themselves the benefits to both sides."

Follow Birds To Reach Repair Shop

A seagull sent a Victoria-bound Trans-Canada Air Lines DC-3 back to Vancouver for repairs yesterday.

The gull crashed into the door just aft of the pilot's compartment shortly after the plane took off.

The plane, with eight passengers on board, returned to Vancouver and was taken out of service for repairs.

Premier In Touch

Premier Bennett continued yesterday to take an animated interest in the goings-on of the legislature.

He sat up in a chair for three-quarters of an hour yesterday afternoon in his room at St. Joseph's Hospital, where he is recovering from a kidney operation.

He asked his executive assistant Dan Ekman about the speeches given yesterday afternoon, read with interest newspaper accounts of the first day of the session, and discussed planning for the rest of the current session.

The premier has his budget, estimated to be around $325,000,000, but has not worked on it for the last few days. It is understood it is all but ready for presentation about Feb. 12.

Duncan Radio Rejected

Duncan isn't ready to support a radio station of its own, the Board of Broadcast Governors has decided.

The board announced yesterday in Ottawa that it had rejected the application by Duncan Mayor J. T. Dobson to set up a station to serve the Cowichan Valley.

It also rejected a bid to install a satellite station in Duncan by Victoria's radio station CKDA. Both applications said it was planned to operate at 1,000 watts.

Garden Notes

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

One job which shouldn't be delayed any longer is the spraying of the peach tree against the leaf-curl disease. I am certainly no spray enthusiast, for I detest the job of mixing and applying the evil-smelling mixtures recommended for the health of our trees, but no matter how much I may skip on the spray schedule for the rest of the garden, the leaf-curl spray for peaches is an absolute must.

This disease is so common and widespread, it is virtually impossible to maintain a peach tree in health unless this key spraying is applied. Like the botrytis disease of peonies, which causes the peony buds to dry up and fall off, the peach tree must "catch" the disease afresh every spring from fungus spores which spend the winter on the bud scales. If you can kill these spores when the buds are swelling but before they open, you're home free, and your tree will come through the summer without the leaves becoming thickened, distorted and blistered.

You need a sunny day for the job, preferably without too much wind. And as we don't get many such days at this time of the year, you'd better have all the spray materials on hand and all ready, so you can jump in and take advantage of any breaks in the weather.

Lime-sulphur is a reliable and inexpensive spray which does a satisfactory job against the leaf-curl infection, and the dry powder is mixed at the rate of 10 heaping tablespoons per gallon of water. If you buy your lime-sulphur in liquid form, mix it according to the directions on the package. I can't give you the formula, as the strength of the concentrate varies from one brand to another.

I should warn you, though, that lime-sulphur will discolor painted surfaces, and if your tree is trained against the house wall, you'll have to spread newspapers behind the tree to protect the paint, or switch to a non-staining spray.

Any spray containing copper will do a good job against leaf-curl, and these too are inexpensive and readily available. Niagara Brand Bordo Mixture is a good one, mixed at the rate of 15 level tablespoons per gallon of water. CIL Tri-Cop is familiar but a bit stronger, and is applied at the rate of five level tablespoons per gallon. If you have any spray on hand recommended for the control of potato blight, this will be quite satisfactory on the peach tree. These copper-based sprays may cause some temporary staining of the paintwork, but, unlike the lime-sulphur stains, it will wash off.

Still another spray which is effective against leaf-curl is Later's Garden Fungicide, and this one is completely non-staining. While it is more expensive, you need less of it, and three tablespoons per gallon of water is enough to do the job.

The efficiency of any of these sprays is vastly increased by adding a "wetting agent" which causes the material to spread evenly over the bark and buds, and makes it more penetrating and sticking. CIL Sticker-Spreader or Later's Surfactant are both good, used at the rate of 4 teaspoonful per gallon of spray.

Chances are you won't get that calm, windless day ideal for spraying, and you'll have to get on with the job regardless of wind. If you spray against the wind most of the stuff will blow back in your face, which is unpleasant, to say the least. If you apply the spray down wind, it will pass through the branches too fast to be effective.

The trick here is to stand to one side and spray across the wind-on the windward side of the tree, of course—allowing the breeze to drift the cloud of spray into the heart of the tree. You must do a thorough job, making sure every last twig is covered, for just one tiny unsprayed bit could re-infect the whole tree.

'Reading Aloud' Credit to TV

The fire-station Westinghouse Broadcasting Co., which is unabashedly full of public spirit, has inaugurated a half-hour program "Reading Out Loud" of such simplicity that its like hasn't been seen on television since TV's youth. A bunch of kids are assembled—anybody's kids—and they are read to by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Julie Harris, Jose Ferrer, Richard Nixon, and people like that.

This was the brainchild of Mike Santangelo, Westinghouse's able young public relations man, who thought that since television generally gets blamed for the decline in reading, it ought to do something about reviving it.

"We have only two things on this show: The guy reading the story and the reaction of the kids listening to it. There is a paucity of reading due to television but every time anyone talks about books on the air—Jack Paar, Steve Allen—book sales go 'way up."

Westinghouse produces the show on tape, pays for it, gives it to educational stations or offers it free to anyone who will put it on in prime evening time without commercials.

We repaired to the control room to watch Julie Harris read. "You know," mused Mr. Santangelo, "if every television station produced one good show a year and then exchanged it with the others, words like paucity wouldn't exist in this medium."

Kids were straggling into the studio below and arranging themselves in chairs in the interesting attitudes of children. "We try to do the shows so the kids aren't bored," said Santangelo. "There's no rehearsal and the spontaneity pays off."

Just then one of the kids lost a tooth. Miss Harris removed it and the show started.

Miss Harris read from Kenneth Grahame's "Wind in the Willows." One little girl kept sticking out her tongue. Another one frowned in concentration. Whenever the camera came up on a little boy or girl who would smile or laugh, director Lou Freedman would say: "Thank you for smiling."

The only commercial was for reading itself: Miss Harris urging the parents to try this themselves. The looks and expressions on the kids' faces will warm the cockles of your heart even if you don't like someone to read aloud to you.

Riches of 'River Kwai'

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Producer Sam Spiegel says "God bless 'Bridge on the River Kwai' every night in his prayers. From his share of the profits, Sam has put together the most expensive apartment in America, maybe the world. It's a penthouse on Park Avenue, New York. For alterations to the rooms, Sam spent $280,000. His CinemaScope projection room in the apartment cost $100,000. To date the place has set his bank balance back $750,000. And it isn't finished.

And do you want to know why Spiegel filmed the cannibalistic "Suddenly Last Summer?" Not because of Elizabeth Taylor. And definitely not for Montgomery Clift. Expecting to lose $2,000,000 on the gruesome Tennessee Williams story, Spiegel went ahead with it, because he admires Katharine Hepburn very much, and believes her role in the picture will win her an Oscar nomination. Because of its gruesome publicity, the movie is now expected to gross $10,000,000.

Stella Stevens, the luscious blonde in "L'il Abner," gets the top roles in "The Slender Thread" and "Melody of Sex."

I have just finished reading Errol Flynn's story of his life, "My Wicked, Wicked Ways." Strange how this man, who never stopped pursuing women, hated them. I always suspected it. His book is confirmation of his awful attitude toward women. Errol doesn't spare himself, and what emerges is a frightened, bitter, courageous, and quite unpleasant person.

Merle Oberon and husband Bruno Paglia gave a party for friends to see her in her old movie, "Wuthering Heights" in which she was so lovely, with Laurence Olivier. Merle is happy in this marriage. She has everything—four homes (two in Mexico, two in southern California) lots of other real estate, diamonds, rubies, emeralds and paintings. And, to top it all, Merle and Bruno recently adopted a baby.

Joseph Cotten, crushed by the death of his Lenore, is selling his two homes, one in California and one in New York. He finished "Temptation" with Ava Gardner and Dirk Bogarde in Italy. Next stop, an apartment in New York—and probably a play.

Grouch and Me

Not Only Saloons But Pool Halls Made Us Welcome

By GROUCHO MARX

Don't get the idea that the saloons were the only places in town where we had social entertainment. We were also cordially received in the pool halls. For an actor on the road, these distinguished ateliers were more inviting than the average dump he lived in.

And besides, if he was handy with a cue, there was always the likelihood of picking up a few bucks. We used to pick up quite a bit of change back in Chicago against the local pool sharks.

The Pantages Circuit was composed of a string of semi-mediaeval theatres stretching from Chicago to the Coast and back again. We were on our way from Duluth to Calgary and had a three-hour layover in Winnipeg. We stashed our hand luggage in the depot and all the boys, except me, automatically headed for the nearest poolroom. In recent weeks I hadn't been too hot with the cue, and I decided that I needed a brief sabbatical from the green cloth. I walked up Main Street. A half block away from a frowsy-looking theatre I heard roars of laughter. I decided I had better go in and see who could possibly be that funny. On the stage were eight or 10 assorted characters in an act called "A Night at the Club." One of these actors wore a very small mustache and very large shoes, and while a big, buxom soprano was singing Schubert's "The Trout," he was alternately spitting a fountain of dry cracker crumbs in the air and beaming her with overripe oranges. By the end of the act the stage was a shambles.

Leaving the theatre, I went back to the depot to meet my brothers. I told them I had just seen a great comic. I described him—a slight man with a tiny mustache, a coffee derby and a large pair of shoes. I then penguin-walked around the depot, imitating him as best I could. By the time I finished raving about his antics my brothers could hardly wait to see him. The Sullivan-Conside Circuit and the Pantages Circuit ran parallel to the Coast, and we finally caught up with him in Vancouver. I had talked him up so much that my brothers were all a little skeptical. Then he appeared, and in less than five minutes they were willing to concede that he was everything I said, and more.

After the show we went backstage and introduced ourselves. We found him in a dingy dressing room which he was sharing with three other eccentric comics. After the preliminary introductions, we told him how wonderful he was. During the ensuing conversation he told us he was getting $50 a week and, although he had been promised a raise to $60, it had never come through.

He had already created considerable excitement in the movie industry. In fact, he told us that movie mogul had offered him $500 a week to work for him. We congratulated him. "When do you start?" I asked. "I'm not going to take it," he answered. "Why not?" I asked, astonished. "You're only getting fifty a week now. Don't you like money?"

"Of course I do," he replied (and, boy, did he prove this later). "But look, boys, I can make good for $50 a week, but no comedian is worth $500 a week. If I sign up with them and don't make good, they'll fire me. Then where will I be? I'll tell you where I'll be. Flat on my back!"

He was a strange little man this Charlie Chaplin. He's still the greatest comic figure that the movies, or any other medium, ever spawned.

Chronic Care Hospitals

'Gorge' Among First In New B.C. Plan

By ALEC MERRIMAN

Victoria's Gorge Hospital will probably be among the first to participate in the new chronic care hospital scheme which the government proposes to bring in at the current session of the legislature.

It is expected the plan will start April 1 and that hospitals will take part in the plan as they provide approved chronic care facilities.

Since Health Minister Martin first announced basic details of the program, Gorge Road Hospital has extended its facilities for chronic care.

Most of the gaps in the present hospital insurance program will be filled at this session.

Two steps will be taken:
1. Patients suffering chronic illnesses or diseases will come under the $1 a day BCHIS plan — if doctors certify they are likely to improve.

Sea Union Still Barred

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress announced Friday it has rejected the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.) bid for reinstatement.

Relief Ship Blocked

Antarctic Scientists Stranded Extra Year

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Twenty-four scientists, including an unidentified North American will be stranded for a full year at the Argentine-operated Lincoln Ellsworth base in Antarctica because a relief ship has been unable to reach them, it was learned last night.

Scientists manning Argentina's Belgrano base also will be cut off for a year, but their condition is expected to be much more comfortable since the station is considerably larger and better equipped than Ellsworth.

In both cases, food and other supplies are sufficient to last the exploration teams until the spring thaws of 1961. An Argentine icebreaker has given up on its relief mission because of unusually heavy ice. It was 170 miles from Ellsworth when it had to turn back. No other attempts to reach the station are possible this year.

Ellsworth was built by the U.S. in 1957 for the International Geophysical Year and was later turned over to Argentina.

Winds Slice Power

High winds last night sliced power and telephone lines in the torrent-drenched area between the Malahat and Nanaimo, adding to the woes of hundreds of residents battling floods and watching for landslides.

There was no consolation from the weather office, which forecast more winds and rain for today.

Damage from flooding was estimated in the "thousands of dollars" in Cowichan and Nanaimo.

Tons of Rock

Hillside and lowland areas in the Cowichan district were hit hardest yesterday as heavy rains loosened tons of rock and mud in slides and rambling Koksilah and Cowichan Rivers rose six feet, forcing at least half a dozen homes to be abandoned.

Sections of Nanaimo were flooded as the Chase River overflowed its banks. A record three inches of rain fell on Duncan overnight Thursday and as much was expected again last night. Near-record rainfalls were reported in Nanaimo and Parksville. A number of slides cut off roads, and other routes were reported under water varying from a few inches to five feet on one section of the Cowichan Bay Road.

Close Watch

Half a dozen bridges in the Cowichan district were being watched closely as water roared by only inches beneath the decks of the spans. A disastrous combination of the heavy rains and an unusually high tide shoved by a strong east wind, swamped the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway track at Koksilah with 17 inches of water, peaking at 5:45 p.m., forcing a freight train to stop and disrupting the passenger service.

A southbound one-car passenger train was held at Duncan and passengers transferred to a Vancouver Island Coach Lines bus early last night to continue to Victoria.

Deep Water

Earlier in the day, a Coach Lines dispatcher said one of the bus drivers found the water so deep on Cowichan Bay Road that he emptied the luggage well and put suitcases and parcels in the passenger compartment to keep them dry. Winds estimated at more than 45 miles an hour blew up at 5 p.m. to add to the havoc. Gusts knocked over a dozen trees, which sliced power and telephone lines, cutting off communications and throwing the valley into darkness.

Lights Out

Lights were out for almost two hours before B.C. Hydro crews, working on high-tension lines despite the high winds, restored power.

One Duncan store sold five dozen candles left over from Halloween. Telephone lines to Victoria

Victoria Faces Still More Rain

A warning that more rain is in store for lower Vancouver Island today was issued by weatherman William Mackie last night in the wake of reports of flooded basements and roads.

"There is definite indication that another period of rain equal to the one we just went through is in store today," he said, "although they don't usually occur two days in a row."

Rain should start early this morning and be over by the afternoon, he said.

Damage from yesterday's rain was comparatively light in Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt. Only a few reports of minor flooding in basements were received.

River Rises Seven Feet At Montreal

MONTREAL (UPI) — The St. Lawrence River rose seven feet in less than an hour early yesterday and flooded an eight-block area of the Montreal waterfront.

Harbor officials said there was a danger of further flooding by water backed up by huge ice jams.

Rebels Weakened By French Order

ALGIERS (UPI) — As rebellious French settlers behind cement-reinforced barricades shouted new defiance of President de Gaulle last night, a French army order threatened to weaken the strength of the insurgents drastically.

Gen. Louis Sapin-Lignieres, commander of the militia in the Algiers area, ordered all units "reorganized." The militia has provided the main muscle for insurgent strength in Algiers thus far.

He ordered the militia to group under a unified command, to stop taking "individual initiatives" and to "normalize their relations" with army authorities.

De Gaulle called for an end to the revolt in a broadcast from Paris, but the insurgents responded with shouts of "De Gaulle to the gallows."

De Gaulle gave his command Friday night to the soldiers of France: restore order in Algeria. He said the right-wing insurgents there are guilty men who dream of usurping power and speak the words of liars and conspirators.

The voice of the French president had hardly died away when the insurgents, clustered around radios in open streets, oblivious to a pouring rain, raised their defiant war cry.

Earlier in the day the insurgents' hopes of winning the loyalty of the French Army in Algeria sagged with declarations by two key French generals that they supported de Gaulle.

51 Survive Emergency Landing

PORT HARDY (CP) — Forty-eight passengers and a crew of three on a Pacific Western Airlines C-46 plane escaped injury late Friday when the plane skidded on a wet runway here in an emergency landing. The plane, on a flight from Port Hardy to Vancouver, had turned back when trouble developed in one engine. The plane landed on the other. The aircraft slid off the end of the runway into a cleared patch and was extensively damaged.

Tough revolt leader Pierre Lagailarde heads for a meeting with his followers.

Sharp, Hard-Hitting Provincial Action Needed

By ALEC MERRIMAN
(Ninth of a Series.)

The cure for the mounting problem of juvenile delinquency calls for sharp, hard-hitting and co-ordinated action by the provincial government, welfare agencies, civic officials, police, and all community residents.

The Colonist has discussed the problems with numerous officials interested in juvenile behavior and has come up with a plan and a number of suggestions that could be the answer.

Emphasis has been placed on the preventive side of juvenile delinquency, coupled with a more realistic system for handling offenders once they get into trouble.

There is now a pitiful lack of co-operation among social workers, probation officers, schools, police, magistrates, children's aid groups, churches, recreation groups, service clubs and many other groups and individuals who go merrily on their own way to help the children.

Most of them do a good job, but they would do a much better job if everybody worked in the same direction.

First and immediate need would seem to be a special provincial department, a youth authority, to co-ordinate all activities in connection with juveniles including closer liaison between probation officers of the attorney-general's department and social workers of the welfare department which runs juvenile correctional institutions and administers foster home care.

This department could come under jurisdiction of a special B.C. committee, organized to deal with children and youth problems, and on this committee should be representatives of the attorney-general's department, welfare department, health and mental health departments, child guidance
